SUMMARY.

The Germans have entered upon a submarine campaign against Allies' ships bound for America.

The submarine U53 torpedoed the British steamer West Point, 2412 tons, 10 miles south of Nantucket Shoals.

The British steamers Strathdene, Stephano, and Kingston, as well as a Norwegian steamer and a Dutch vessel, have also been sunk.

The captain of the West Point had been warned by the British Embassy at Washington.

The vessel was racing for port, when the submarine suddenly appeared, and torpedoed her.

The crew were given time to leave the vessel before she was sunk.

A submarine held up the American steamer Kansan, bound from New York to Boston, and examined the vessel's papers.

There is much concern in New York regarding ships at present in the Atlantic.

The consensus of opinion is that there are at least two German submarines off Nantucket Shoals.

Shipping companies are greatly concerned, and some have cabled cancelling their sailings.

It is recognised at Washington that a serious problem confronts the Government.

The British have considerably advanced northward and north-east of Courcelette.

The Germans, during a counter-attack north of Lesboeufs, recovered a small portion of their lost trenches.

Elsewhere the British have secured their aims. They have taken possession of the whole of Le Sars, capturing 500 prisoners.

The Germans launched an attack against the new French positions west of Sailly.

Successive waves of the enemy were broken up by the French curtain of fire without reaching the French trenches.

The French attack at Bouchavesnes were directed against Peronne, which proved exceptionally difficult of approach.

The enemy has collected an enormous amount of artillery at Mont St. Quentin, which commands Peronne.

French aeroplanes engaged in six air fights. They bombed Vaux Wood and positions north-east of Peronne.

A German communique states: There has been a continued increase in the strength of the enemy's artillery fire during the past few days.

The enemy, the message says, only penetrated our lines at Le Sars, and between Morval and St. Pierre Vaast Wood.

The Roumanian situation is obscure. It is evident that von Hindenburg has concentrated all available resources to punish Roumania.

Roumania has withdrawn several divisions forming its original army in Transylvania, and sent them to the Dobrudja.

German attacks have necessitated the retreat of the Roumanians in Southern Transylvania, and the abandonment of Brasso.

The Roumanians have taken up new positions in the mountain frontier.

The week's retreat was skilfully organised, and carried out in good order.

The Roumanians north of Brasso are still in the Maros Valley, and are in touch with the Russian left wing.

A German communique says: The Roumanians are yielding on the whole of the Transylvanian east front.

The Germans claim to have captured Brasso, and have forced a way into the Alt Valley.

The Allied attack on the third Bulgarian line continues vigorously.

A French communique states: The Servians have occupied the summit of Dobropolji.

King Constantine has persuaded M. Lambros, professor of history in the Athens University, to form a Cabinet.

M. Lambros is inexperienced in politics, and a Germanophile, though he is not hostile to the Entente.

M. Venizelos had arranged to sail for Samos aboard the Atromitos.

On learning that a German submarine was near, M. Venizelos changed his ship.

The value of the ruse was proved when the submarine chased the Atromitos.

An Italian communique states that there is an intense artillery bombardment on the Carso front.

It is reported that an Austrian battleship has been blown up at Pola.

The first men called up who reported last Tuesday went into camp at the Showground yesterday.

They received the same treatment as A.I.F. men, and were served with similar camp uniform and kit.

The total figures so far are:—Examined, 1,259; fit, 4603; unfit, 4566; doubtful, 1974. Applied for exemptions, 11,557.

Meetings in favour of the Prime Minister's proposals were held last night at Darlinghurst and Balmain.

A women's meeting took place at the Mosman Town Hall, at which compulsory service was endorsed.

A women's meeting against compulsory service was held at the Protestant Hall last night.

An anti-conscription resolution was carried with two dissentients.

The joint honorary secretaries of the National Campaign for Compulsory Reinforcements have issued an appeal to supporters.

Three members of the I.W.W. have been committed for trial in connection with the murder of Constable Duncan at Tottenham.

Mr. Justice Heydon referred in the Industrial Court yesterday to the cessation of work by members of certain trade-unions.

He characterised such action as lawless and dangerous, and as a flouting of the industrial law.

The president of the Methodist General Conference has issued a manifesto on the conscription issue.

The members of the Methodist Church, it is pointed out, must determine the question according to the dictates of conscience.

A motion against conscription was carried at Kurri Kurri. Mr. Charlton, M.P., advocated the conscription of income over £400.

The Eastern Goldfields branch of the Australian Labour Federation at Kalgoorlie declared against conscription.

Damage to the extent of £44 was caused to the chairs in the Town Hall at the women's meeting addressed by Mr. Hughes.

The third day's racing of the A.J.C. Spring Meeting was held yesterday in fine, cool weather. The attendance numbered 18,000.

Carlita won the Craven Plate by a head from Cetigne, with Wallace Isinglass a length away third.

The Suburban Handicap was won by Hoplold, the Members' Handicap by Mehi King, and the Gimcrack Stakes by Manna.

At the Goulburn police court a man was fined £10 for selling a concoction purporting to cure consumption.

The reports submitted to the Y.W.C.A. conference yesterday showed that there had been an advance in every department of activity.

The work which the association was doing among girls was the subject of the principal speeches at the evening session.

The hearing of an action for alleged slander had to be postponed owing to the non-attendance of witnesses who were bookmakers.

It was explained that the witnesses in question refused to appear on the ground that they were attending a race meeting.

Twelve members of the I.W.W. appeared at the Central Police Court yesterday on charges of treason.

On the application of the Crown, a further remand was granted until the following day, when the cases will be gone on with.

The farmers in the Mackay district (Q.) have decided not to return to work until the Jackson sugar award is abolished or modified.

Serious damage has been caused by the floods at Forbes. The town is surrounded by the flood waters.

A missionary demonstration in connection with the General Synod, which meets to-day, was held in the Town Hall last night.

Forecast.—Fine and cool throughout, except for a few showers in the extreme southeast; southerly winds.

INLAID PARQUET LINOLEUM.

The latest development in the manufacture of Inlaid Linoleum is an ingenious process by which the grain of an Oak Parquetry Floor is faithfully reproduced. Therefore, an apartment laid with this Linoleum has the beauty for which a real Oak Parquetry Floor is noted, but the cost is much less.

Inlaid Parquet Linoleum has to a great extent superseded the ordinary Tile as a Floorcovering for Hall, Corridors, and Vestibules, the soft, rich effects of Inlaid Wood, harmonising more effectively with the panelling so largely used in modern houses. The pattern goes right through the material, so the design cannot wear off. Inlaid Parquet Linoleum is eminently suited for any flooring which is subject to very hard wear. These world-renowned floorcoverings are of British manufacture, and guaranteed thoroughly reliable.

Inlaid Parquet Linoleum is made in three qualities, 6ft wide, and is sold by the running yard.

It does not seem to be desirable to state how many people were in the theatre last night to welcome the Follies. Suffice it that a house packed to its highest capacity displayed an intensity of sustained enthusiasm that easily outleapt all hitherto accepted parallels. The Australian popularity of Miss Vera Pearce was again proved beyond all possibility of cavil. The great audience warmed to her so that at the end it would hardly let her go. And so, in due degree, with all the others. It was a joyous family reunion on the grand scale.

YOUR BOY—A MAN!
YOUR BOY—A MAN!
YOUR BOY—A MAN!
YOUR BOY—A MAN!

There is no time in life will exactly compare with the time when your boy or girl is about to leave school.

The pride of the parent, the joy of the child, and the anticipation of the future all point to that time, A MILESTONE EVENT, which will be a Red Letter Day ever to be remembered in years to come, and a photograph taken about that time will be of family interest for all times, and will bring back pleasant memories.

Bring that boy of yours to our Studios for his photograph.

He is growing, expanding, changing daily, more subtly than you realise.

He'll be a youth—a man before you know it, and unless you heed our warning you will have nothing to remind you—or him—of his happy boyhood.

Don't neglect or you will EVER REGRET it if you do.

A GENTLE DENTIST can work wonders with the most tender teeth. By careful, skilful work, he can save you from pain, and you will have complete confidence in him. Through all my work gentleness is the prominent feature. Nervous ladies need not have the slightest fear in my hands. In fact, all who have been treated have been delighted with my methods. I have an apparatus, the only one in Sydney, with which I drill and fill the most sensitive tooth quite painlessly. This wonderful invention enables the nervous patient to come to me with complete confidence. Dentist Phillip Moses, Orchard's Corner, George-street.

MILITARY CROSS.

LIEUTENANT MAX WHITE.

Shortly after the war broke out Mr. Max White, of Merton (son of Mr. E. R. White), left for England for tuition, and enlisted as a lieutenant in the Royal Artillery. Since he entered upon active service he has been slightly wounded and was once "gassed." Yesterday a cable message to his brother, Mr. E. E. White, announced that he had won the Military Cross. Lieutenant Max White was a King's School boy and a noted school boxer, as was his friend and classmate, Rex. Buckland, who, unfortunately, was killed in action in France. Lieutenant White is also well known as a polo player.

CANBERRA COMMISSION.

In adjourning the inquiry into the administration of the Federal Capital until the 30th inst, the Royal Commissioner (Mr. Wilfred Blacket, K.C.) explained that the Postmaster-General (Mr. Webster), who had asked for the inquiry, was anxious to take an active part in the conscription campaign. Another reason for the adjournment was that Colonel Owen, the Director-General of Works under the Commonwealth, wished to make an engineering survey at Canberra which would occupy 10 days.

Mr. Blacket spent yesterday morning going through some of the evidence. In the afternoon he visited the Potts Hill water supply for the purpose of comparing the scheme with the one which is being carried out in the Federal territory.

PROMOTION ABROAD.

NEW TYPE OF SCHOOL.

PLAN OF THE BRIGHTON-LE-SANDS BUILDING.

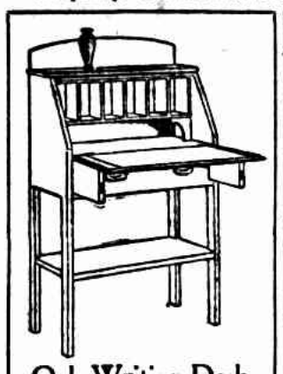

The special feature of the Brighton-le-Sands school is the arrangement of doors and windows of the teaching rooms, which enable nearly the whole of the two sides of the rooms to be open for ventilation purposes. The doors on the inner walls nearly the whole length of each room open outwards, and will be fitted with hopper inlet ventilators, which will operate when it is found necessary to close the doors.

Another important and new feature of the design is a playing area, 75 feet x 47 feet, which has been roofed in, the floor being covered with tan bark.

BANCO COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four.)

EJECTMENT ACTION.

Sewell v Hennessy.

Mr. Milner Stephen, instructed by Mr. F. P. Woodward, of Queanbeyan (by his agents, Messrs. Frank A. Davenport and Son), appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. O'Reilly and Mr. Bignold, instructed by Mr. Ernest W. Warren, for the defendant. This was an action of ejectment brought by William Thomas Sewell of Thirroul, grazier, against Catherine Hennessy, of Bungendore, widow, to obtain possession of an allotment of land in Turallastreet, in the town of Bungendore, to the possession of which the plaintiff claims to be entitled by conveyance. The defence was that in 1894, after the death of her husband, defendant and her children went to live in a cottage on the land in question, with the consent of the owner—a man named Jones, and he in that year told her she could consider the property her home till she died. Jones, who was an old man, in infirm health, lived in a cottage at the back of the land, and he died in 1906. Since then she had effected repairs to the cottage, put up a new fence, etc., and paid the rates. She had never paid any rent for the property to anybody.

The plaintiff, on the other hand, said that the property was conveyed to him by Alexander Robinson, late of Sutton Forest, and in 1893 he went up to the place with Robinson and found Edward Jones in possession. Robinson said that Jones had been a good fellow to his brother Thomas Robinson, and if plaintiff did not mind he would allow him to remain on during his life. In this plaintiff acquiesced, and a document to that effect was drawn up. In 1898, after Alexander Robinson's death, plaintiff visited the place again, when he found defendant in possession of the premises.

The jury found for plaintiff, but expressed a hope that some compensation would be given to defendant for any expense she had been put to in regard to the property.

Mr. Stephen said that the plaintiff had already made an offer to defendant. Nevertheless, what the jury had stated would be borne in mind.

SLANDER ACTION.

Pearl v Litton.

Mr. Barton, instructed by Messrs. Makinson and d'Apice, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. George Martin, instructed by Messrs. Cecil A. Coghlan and Co., for the defendant. This was an action brought by Samson Pearl against Lewis Litton, to recover damages for slander. Mr. Barton, in opening the case, said that plaintiff was a man of substance and largely engaged in mining, and both he and defendant were men of sporting proclivities and members of City Tattersall's Club. On the afternoon of August 24, plaintiff was in the card-room of the club, watching a game of cribbage between defendant and a man named Charles Harris. In the course of the game plaintiff noticed that Harris miscalculated his points to the extent of two against himself. Plaintiff did not comment on the mistake until the game was over, when he said to Harris, who was a friend of his, that he had played for £10, and had miscounted two points against himself, and that if he counted like that it was 2 to 1 that defendant would get him. Defendant thereupon became violently excited, and, jumping from his chair, said to plaintiff, "You are a scoundrel, robber, and swindler, and a thief." This was the slander complained of. The card-room was crowded at the time, and plaintiff said that the slander was malicious and unwarranted, and had seriously affected his reputation. Subsequently, he sent a lawyer's letter to defendant, demanding an apology and the payment of £100 to the War Fund. This request was not acceded to. At his request, the committee held an inquiry into the matter, and defendant, while denying that he used the words attributed to him, admitted that he said to plaintiff, "You are nothing better than a thief." The chairman of the committee then pointed out that plaintiff was holding a double-barrelled gun at defendant, as he was suing him at law. He heard afterwards from a member of the committee that, owing to the contradictory nature of the evidence, the matter was dismissed. Plaintiff then proceeded with his action, claiming £2000.

Defendant pleaded not guilty.

The case is part heard.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

INSTIGATING A STRIKE.

On the 29th ult. an injunction restraining J. Hartley, of Moree, Herbert Speering, of Walgett, M. Prince, of Cobar, and Spencer Barden, of Moree, from instigating to or aiding in a shearers' strike was granted on the application of the Merriwa Contract Shearing Company, and the respondents were called upon on Monday to show cause why they should not be dealt with for taking part in the strike.

Mr. McLachlan, of Messrs. McLachlan and Murray, who appeared for the company, said that with the view of coming to some satisfactory arrangement with the men, he asked that the injunction should continue until Monday next.

Mr. Moffatt, of Messrs. Moffatt and Penny, who appeared for the respondents, said the matter was practically settled.

His Honor said that he was glad to hear it, and adjourned the matter until Monday next.

IRON AND BRASS FOUNDERS' WAGES.

In the appeal by the Federated Ironworkers' Association of Australasia against the award of the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group, No. 11 Board, his Honor said that he was in a difficulty in deciding the appeal on its merits. The whole question was a comparative one; ought the men on cruicible work to get the same pay as those on cupola work. He had read the evidence, but he should like to view the foundries. Unfortunately, the strike of the moulders had thrown the works idle, and he could not see the two processes in operation. He would, however, go and see the foundries and the surroundings of the work, have the operations explained to him, and then consider his decision.

(Before Mr. Justice Edmunds.)

APPLICATION FOR CANCELLATION.

Mr. H. A. Mitchell applied, on behalf of the Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Ltd., for the cancellation of the registration of the Federated Engineedrivers' and Firemen's Association of Australia. (coast district), several members of which had taken part in a strike at the company's steel works at Port Waratah, Newcastle.

After evidence had been taken on behalf of the company, the case was adjourned generally.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

HYDE v RAILWAY COMMISSIONER.

This was a case in which Alfred John Hyde, wharf labourer, sued the Chief Commissioner for Railways and Tramways for £200 damages for an injury to plaintiff's foot, alleged to be caused in connection with the working of a grain elevator. His Honor gave his reserved judgment in favour of the defendant Commissioner.

THEATRE SEATS.

Chard v Haymarket Theatre, Ltd.

George Chard, carpenter, of Surry Hills, sued the Haymarket Theatre, Ltd., for £75 compensation for injuries sustained. The plaintiff's case was that certain metal rods were used to keep the theatre seats in position. One of these rods was placed so that it projected upon a passage used for passing and egress. The result was that plaintiff, while leaving the theatre, was injured by a protruding rod, which cut his leg. The defence was a denial of liability. His Honor found a verdict for the plaintiff for £11. Mr. Maxwell, instructed by Mr. A. W. Gardner, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Barton, instructed by Mr. S. M. Stephens, for the defendant company.

MONEY LENT.

Rolfe v Flanagan.

Edmund Rolfe, of Sherwood Grange, Smithfield, grazier, sued Anthony Flanagan, of the Robert Burns Hotel, Bathurst and Sussex streets, innkeeper, for £174 8s 8d, money lent and interest thereon. The defence was never indebted. His Honor returned a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount claimed. Mr. Allworth, of Messrs. Allworth and Weaver, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Chubb, instructed by Mr. H. Smith, for the defendant.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray and juries.)

Mr. J. R. Browning Crown Prosecutor.

ACQUITTED.

James John Sydney Woods, a cabdriver, was charged with stealing £4, the property of Axel Hoff. There being no evidence against the accused, his Honor directed the jury to acquit him, and he was accordingly discharged. Mr. J. C. Gannon, K.C., instructed by Mr. F. Panker, appeared for the defence.

NOT GUILTY.

Stanley Mackenzie, charged with uttering and forging a cheque, was found not guilty. The accused, who was defended by Mr. W. C. Clegg, was discharged.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

On a charge of stealing and false pretences (four counts), Nea Mary Cotterill was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour in the Long Bay Reformatory, the sentence to be suspended upon the accused entering into a surety of £40 to be of good behaviour for 12 months.

THE NEW ZOO.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The arrangements for the opening function of the new Zoo on Saturday seem to betray egotism and a total lack of ordinary courtesy on the part of the State Cabinet. Apart from the fact that the area is but portion of a beautiful public reserve established by the Hon. James Ashton when Minister for Lands, the new park would not have come into existence at all had there not been the Royal Zoological Society of N.S.W. The three Cabinet Ministers who spoke took the kudos to themselves or their erstwhile colleague, Mr. N. P. Nielsen, for all that had been done at Taronga Park, but, out of ordinary courtesy, could not, at least, the president of the society have been asked to say a few words? Its members have worked hard and disinterestedly for years and collected the animals, which collection the public now enjoy. Furthermore, it would only have been a due compliment to the memory of the late Walter Bradley, who is credited with the honour of founding the society, to have invited his widow to join the official party. That lady was present, but merely as an ordinary member of the public. Surely, "another generation has risen up which knoweth not Joseph!" And the honour due to the members of the society in general, and the late Walter Bradley in particular, was most shamefully lacking.

I am, etc., JUSTITIA.

Telling you why KOKO is a Hair Preparation Women love to use.

"My hair was falling badly, but is now growing nicely again, thanks to KOKO, and is twice as thick. I know nothing to excel KOKO for making the hair bright and glossy, and at the same time stimulating the growth. If people knew how good KOKO is they would never be without it."

"I have used hair tonics for years, but nothing did my hair much good until I tried KOKO, which is a lovely dressing for the hair, and improves it greatly. A friend of mine had very poor hair, but after using KOKO it is quite thick and wavy."

"KOKO is a lovely dressing, making the hair beautifully glossy, but I like KOKO chiefly because it improves the hair so much without being greasy."

"After fever my daughter had her head shaved. Through using KOKO her hair now measures 43 inches, although she never had very much hair before her illness."

"I am just delighted with KOKO. My hair used to be lank and oily, but now it stands out quite fluffy, and looks lovely."

"KOKO is such a delightful dressing, my mother and I cannot do without it. Our hair has grown so thick and long, and is so glossy; it really seems marvellous."

"I find KOKO a perfect dressing for the hair, so cool and soothing, and I believe it has done both my own and my children's hair more good than anything else."

(NAMES GIVEN.)

You cannot get results like that with ordinary hair preparations.

There is such a distinct difference between KOKO and other hair preparations that when those who have been searching for a clean and dependable hair dressing eventually come to try KOKO they never forget its agreeable qualities. Nearly thirty years ago we foresaw that the increasing refinement among all classes called for a pleasanter preparation for the hair than was then obtainable—a preparation having the proved efficacy of KOKO, combined with its cleanness and freedom from every disagreeable ingredient. It is no wonder that women have never ceased to write spontaneously in praise of KOKO when they find it so satisfactory for thin and falling hair, so enticingly cool and soothing as a dressing in warm weather, so helpful in arranging and "waving" the hair quickly. If you have not yet tried KOKO, you should cut out this concession coupon and get

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL.

There has been erected at Manly a memorial, which is to be unveiled by the Governor-General on Saturday. The memorial rises to a height of over 35ft, and has been erected by Mr. Mark Mitchell and the members of his family to perpetuate the memory of the young men from Manly who have fallen in the present war. The monument is built entirely of trachyte. The base, 10ft square, is octagonal in shape. The pedestal rises to a height of 8ft. The shaft, 18ft in length from the base to the cap, is in the longest piece of trachyte yet polished in one length. It is 26in in diameter. Surmounting the cap is a ball, representing the globe, with the word "Anzac" in gold letters in the band around the equator on the globe. Eight bronze medallions in panel shape have been placed in position on the pedestal. This interesting group was cast from a French alloy in statuary bronze by Messrs. Milne Bros., of this city. One panel bears the main inscription of the monument, which is as follows:—

"To the memory of those gallant men of Manly who in the present war so gloriously gave their lives for the sake of humanity and justice. This memorial was erected by the family of Alan David Mitchell, the first soldier of Manly to fall."

Messrs. Loveridge and Hudson are the contractors, Mr. Percy Calve is the sculptor, and the work is being carried out from designs and under the supervision of Mr. Burcham Clamp, architect.

GENERAL NOTES.

An example of the durability of the old sandstock brick, hand-made, and used in Sydney in the early days before making bricks by machinery was invented, is given in the work of pulling down the old Education building in Bent-street, and although these bricks have been in the walls of that building for considerably over half a century, they are as sound and good looking as the day they were laid in the wall. From a building over 100 years old recently pulled down in Phillip-street, there were taken from the bottom course, at the foundation level, sandstock bricks which were in a splendid state of preservation, while the mortar in which this course was set, made from shell lime, had become a kind of fluff, which melted with the pressure of the hand.

Pumping machinery is to be installed in connection with the water supply of Inverell.

Mr. Burcham Clamp, architect, has let a contract to Mr. T. W. Coates, of Auburn, to erect a new operating theatre at the Granville Electorate Cottage Hospital, Auburn.

NO-CONSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—From statements made by Mr. Lamond in your issue to-day, and from other sources, there appears to be a deliberate attempt to associate the political labour movement and the no-conscription campaign with the I.W.W. The no-conscription campaign headquarters, and its management committee at MacDonell House, represent mainly the political labour movement, including affiliated unions in New South Wales; but as there were Liberals, women of the peace army, and socialists who wished to join some organisation to combat conscription, the campaign is being conducted by a management committee that invites all no-conscriptionists to join together to defeat the referendum.

People of all shades of political opinion, except the I.W.W., are joining us in the campaign. No person or organisation connected in any way with the I.W.W. is associated with us. We have many offers of help from persons willing to canvass or speak at public meetings who are strangers, and explicit directions have been given to those in charge of the various sections of our work that the services of no one connected in any way whatsoever with the I.W.W. shall be accepted.

Furthermore, all the members of the management committee are either Australian-born or British subjects.

I am, etc., J. H. CATTS,
General Organiser and Director.

THE LIGHT IN THE UPPER STOREY.

BY FLORENCE WARDEN.

(ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.)

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

But as yet there was no sign in her demeanour of any such intention. She was overwrought, excited, fatigued, despondent. But she was not apparently either contrite or anxious to confess.

"I got your letter," he said at last in a low voice, without looking at her.

She was startled, and with an effort she said:

"It was a silly letter. Written upon impulse. You see I thought better of it. I thought perhaps——"

His had turned, and was regarding her intently, with an expression in which there was too much of criticism, too much of incredulity, to be borne with resignation. She stopped abruptly, and turned away to the window, looking out at the sparkling sea. She was not ready for any sort of confession, that was evident. She was going to brave it out.

"Well?" was all he said.

But this time his tone was a little dryer than before.

She turned upon him irritably.

"It's not very kind of you," she said querulously, "to be demanding explanations, to be holding a sort of Court of Justice, when you see I'm worn out. Of course, I have—I have something to tell you, something of no particular interest and importance, but something. But I'm not fit to talk now."

"I quite realise that you are tired. And what I want is to be able to find something for you to eat and drink, and to send you off to bed," the Major answered in a level, matter-of-fact tone, by no means the tone of yielding affection she wanted to hear. "But I can't let you go until I have heard what it was that took you away——"

"My letter told you that," interpolated Giralda quickly.

He met her eyes with a mild but steady look.

"Well, I want to know also what brought you back again."

Her eyes fell.

"I thought you'd be glad," she said in confusion. "You said so in the letter you left at the Abbey."

"Oh, you got that, did you?"

"Yes."

"You were in the house while I was there, then?" No answer.

"Why was I not allowed to know it?"

A slight flush came into her cheeks.

The Major went on:

"Certainly, when I wrote that letter, you must have been in the mind to remain away from me. What has happened since then to induce you to come back?"

Despite, at bay, Giralda made an effort to pull herself together.

"You seem more annoyed at my return than at my going away," she asserted resentfully.

"Never mind that. Let us have the explanation."

Giralda hesitated.

"I didn't expect to be met like this!" she said, almost whimpering.

He was quiet, not unkind, but dry.

"What did you expect, then? That I should ask no questions at all?"

"No, of course, not," she said sulkily. Then, after a pause, she threw herself down upon the couch again, in a sitting position, clasping her hands with an air of elaborate resignation, and said:

"I thought it would be more convenient for you, for your work on the committee, that I should be away, and pleasanter for me than to lie under the suspicions, the wicked, unjust suspicions, of all the busy bodies in Southborough. That's why I went away, as I told you."

The Major bowed his head in grave assent.

"And what, exactly, brought you back?"

She hesitated. Then she answered in a quavering voice:

"Why, your letter, of course."

At any other time the adoring husband might have been deceived. Just now he was clear-sighted, and he recognised the hollowness of the tone in which this assertion was made.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, no, it was not that," he said.

"You don't believe me?"

"I can't."

"Well, if you won't accept anything I say, what is the use of my talking to you?"

"We'll begin at the other end," said the Major in the same tone. "Who was it took you to the Abbey?"

"Who? The driver of the fly, of course."

"But you didn't go in a fly. You went on a motor-bicycle," said the Major, fixing upon her a gaze she could not meet without flinching. "I want to know the name of the man who took you there. I don't want to know anything about his appearance, because I know him for myself. And it was not Cosmo Romney."

Giralda crumpled up under his words, cowered in such grave, measured tones as they had double force. She seemed to grow smaller, to lose weight, dignity, consequence, even beauty as she cowered before him. She was by this time leaning against the table upon which he laid one hand, standing erect and firm, like an embodiment of stern justice.

"If you knew so much," she said bitterly, "you know all there is to know."

"Not quite. I don't know his name."

She shook her head.

"And I am not going to tell you," she said obstinately, but in a low voice.

"Why not? Can't you trust me not to take any undue advantage of anything I may tell me?"

She bowed her head so low that he could not see her face.

"It's not my secret," she whispered.

"Secret? Why should there be any secrecy about it?"

But the Major's voice grew much harder as he uttered these words, and she took the change as a menace. She stole a frightened look at him, and remained silent.

"Giralda, this is an awful time for us both," he went on, trying not to show all the fierce anger and suspicion which had begun to boil up again within him. "But we don't want to make it worse by any want of confidence. You have confided in me before; why shouldn't you trust me again——"

She raised her head quickly.

"It was necessary that I should tell you before," she said. "It wouldn't have been honest not to. Now it's different. Your having his name would make no difference."

"I'm not so sure of that."

"What do you mean?"

"The man you went to the Abbey with—not an Englishman."

She was startled, more frightened than she had been before.

"What makes you think that? You never have seen him," she gasped.

"If he is—a German," the Major went on in impressive tones, "is that a reason I want frankness, when your position is at stake, and when you are speaking to a man whom you can absolutely trust?"

She sprang to her feet, unable to keep still.

"It's not you I am afraid of," she said quickly. "It's those other men you are with, every day, those men you consult and work with, men who are like a pack of wolves where foreigners are concerned; who would never believe in the innocence or honesty of an alien, or be fair or honest in their dealings with one."

"Can't you trust me to be fair?"

She hesitated.

"Well, it's not a question of me, but of another person," she said. "I've given my word not to tell his name, and I'm not going to speak it, to you or to anyone."

"Well, after all the name doesn't matter much," said the Major, with a sudden relapse into more colloquial tones. "It's the fact that you sheltered this man and that you are sheltering him still that matters."

"What I have done," cried Giralda, "was done out of a sense of fairness, and more, I give you my word——"

"Don't lie to me," broke in her husband sharply.

Giralda was silent a moment, and then said defiantly:

"I tell the truth I don't say anything about my feelings for this man. But I had not been a man I had known before he had come to me and told me the story of the persecution he had met with, I should have done what I have done, what I am doing just the same."

The Major carefully concealed the satisfaction he felt at the admission in this speech.

"You have been imposed upon," he said shortly. "That is absolutely false, absolutely true," cried Giralda, with flashing eyes. "It is unworthy of you to say such a thing of a man merely because he is not English as you have, or you think you have, a prejudice against him."

"You might do me more justice than to accuse me of that," said her husband coldly. "You are accusing a man without reason," retorted she.

"I hope not. What honest motive can there be for a man to accept shelter and take advantage of it to make signals at night?"

"He has never done such a thing. It is a malicious tale," cried Giralda.

"What honest motive could lead a man to make clandestine appointments with a woman who had exposed her own reputation to slander by sheltering him?"

"There would have been nothing of the sort time about my seeing him—but——"

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The Government Statistician estimates that the area under wheat this season is 4,524,000 acres, which is 647,864 acres less than last year. The fact that the area is smaller will not come as a surprise to those interested in the industry, but rather there will be gratification that the shrinkage is not greater. It was generally expected that the shortage would be 20 or 25 per cent., as compared with the record area sown last season, and, all things considered, the fact that over four and a half million acres have been cultivated and sown is a wonderful tribute to the strength of the industry. As it is, the present area is the largest sown in this State in any year excepting the 1915-16 season, when the record area of 5,172,000 acres yielded an abundant harvest. Previous to that the largest area was in 1914-15, when 4,143,016 acres were sown to wheat—that is, about 380,000 acres less than this season. The present area, then, is practically representative of the normal increase in area of past years, excepting the last season. On that occasion the promise of a guarantee of 4s per bushel for wheat grown on new land undoubtedly influenced heavier planting. This year such a bonus was not in existence, and there were other factors that tended to decrease the area.

In the first place the demands of the war seriously affected the supply of rural labour. The ploughing, sowing, and harvesting of the record area under wheat last season was a wonderful achievement in existing circumstances—an achievement which arouses the more admiration the better it is understood. Labour sources have been still further depleted by farmers' sons and rural workers enlisting, and to put the present area under wheat is another very creditable undertaking. In addition to the labour shortage, especially the fear of its accentuation by harvest time this year, the difficulty in realising on the last crop, and the high prices ruling for live stock have both been important factors in decreasing the area. At the present time every country railway station in the wheat belt has great stacks of wheat from the last crop in its yards awaiting transportation, and the owners have only received 3s per bushel return owing to the abnormal conditions prevailing. As it was obvious months ago that the next crop would be harvested before the last was shipped out of the country, it is only natural that growers should have restricted their cultivated areas. Furthermore, the probability is that many small growers' particularly share-farmers, found it financially impossible to cultivate to the same extent as before. It must be remembered that last year's crop came after a drought and failure which seriously handicapped thousands of growers. The amount they have so far received from the wheat pool certainly would not leave them properly equipped for the cultivating of another crop.

Again, seeing the uncertain prospects facing the wheat industry—with one crop coming in on top of another, the problem of oversea transportation far from satisfactory, and, in addition, uncertainty as to future values and developments—larger landowners in a stronger financial position, not unnaturally, were attracted more towards live stock than wheat growing, as prices are extremely good. In many cases men who in the past had sown a considerable area of wheat have reduced it to a few hundred acres, and put sheep and cattle on their country. To some extent, also, landowners have been deterred from wheat growing by dislike of the Government interference with the industry that has taken place during the last two years. When these various factors are taken into account, therefore, it is, as already stated, not a matter for surprise that the area under wheat has decreased. If the official estimate proves correct the area sown is an admirable proof of the resourcefulness both of the industry and the country generally, as the financing of the wheat industry for the last three years has been a gigantic task. Economically, the present decrease in the area is not altogether a matter for regret. At present prospects point to another record yield. If so it will be a heavy tax on available resources to handle the crop, while its value and time of realisation are uncertain. In the circumstances it is as well that more attention should be given, for the time being at least, to the live stock industry, which entails less labour comparatively, and at present prompter and perhaps better returns.

THE WHEAT POOL.

COUNTRY AGENTS' CLAIMS.

CONFERENCE WITH SHIPPERS WANTED.

Representatives of the Country Wheat Agents' Association of New South Wales yesterday interviewed Mr. E. Harris, the officer in charge of the Government wheat operations, and requested him to endeavour to arrange a conference between the executive of the association and wheat shippers. It is stated that there are 235 country wheat agents working in connection with the wheat pool, and the association, which has only recently been formed, has 151 members. We understand that Mr. Harris has undertaken to endeavour to arrange such a conference as that asked for, recognising that it is important in regard to the successful conduct of the wheat pool's operations next season.

The representatives of the association state that for some time past they have tried to obtain better treatment from the shippers than they are at present receiving, and have asked for a conference to be held, but without success. As is generally known, the wheat-shipping firms employed by the Government receive a commission of 3½d per bushel on the wheat they handle, out of which they pay the country agent 1d per bushel. It is contended by the country agents that this is not sufficient remuneration for the work they have to do, and they claim that such work is far more important than is generally understood. They point out that the work the country agent has to do for the 1d includes, in the first place, canvassing for the wheat, which takes up considerable time and energy, and absorbs travelling expenses, but is necessary to secure wheat for his particular firm. The agent also has to employ men to stack the wheat, paying them 16s, and sometimes 18s, per day. No time must be wasted in unloading a team, for the penalty of delay would be that the farmer would sell his wheat to some other agent. A weighbridge man has to be employed, and a clerk to issue the shippers' weight ticket. In addition to the work at the railway yard the country agent has to employ a clerk in his office, as the system of interim receipts and certificates requires the attention of someone with a good knowledge of bookkeeping, figures, etc. The agent, having got his wheat stacked, has to cover and curtain it. The shipping firms provide the material, but the agent has to pay the cost of labour. After the wheat is stacked his expenses do not cease, the following being an estimate, prepared by the agents, of the expenditure:—Cost per 100 bags of putting into stacks, 6s 6d; loading out of stack into truck, 7s 6d; fixing roofing and hanging curtains, 1s 6d; laying dunnage and restacking same, supplying wheeling planks and barrows, 1s 6d—a total of 17s.

Then it is stated that if an agent takes an inferior wheat, and no matter how careful he may be some bad stuff will be "rung in," he is debited with the difference between the value of the inferior stuff and the f.a.q. standard, although he has no definitely stated standard quality or any scale of deductions on which to work. If he takes in bad bags and fails to deduct for them, he is debited with them, and if the wheat gets damaged in the stack he has to pay the cost of rebagging, which is an extremely heavy item. Some firms supply the bags free of cost. He is also responsible for the exact count of bags and the weight of the wheat of which he takes delivery.

This is the case mainly as made out by the country agents, who complain that they made nothing, or next to nothing, last season on a commission of 1d per bushel, and say they cannot do the work for the same amount during the coming season.

HARDEN.—At a well-attended meeting of the Murrumburrah branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, held here on Saturday, the following resolutions were adopted:—"That if the Government handle next year's wheat they should make a first payment of 3s a bushel at country stations; that the farmers of the State have a representative on next year's Wheat Board; that the auditors appointed on behalf of the farmers be allowed to act next year from the start; that 15 per cent. depreciation on the value of farming machinery was a fair allowance to be made in regard to income tax."

CITRUS CANKER.

Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, and Japan are not the only places where citrus canker is known to exist. South Africa also harbours the disease. The South African Government has been combating the scourge in certain localities since March, 1915, and its efforts so far have proved that it can be successfully dealt with in arid localities. Ethel M. Doidge, D.Sc., F.L.S., in a paper read before the South African Association for the Advancement of Science, said:—

"In spite of the unsuccessful attempts to control this disease in Florida, it has been proved that under the drier conditions of the Transvaal, the disease can be controlled in the orchard by thorough spraying with lime sulphur. The diseased twigs should be cut out out as far as possible and burned; all affected fruit removed and buried deep or burned, and the trees thoroughly sprayed two or three times with the lime sulphur. When the disease is once under control, one spraying each year, or every second year, is advisable as a precautionary measure. It would be waste of time and of money to spray nursery stock in which serious stem infection has taken place, as it is impossible to eradicate the organism when it has a firm hold under the bark; and it is also probable that an attempt to bud such trees even with non-susceptible varieties would result in a large percentage of failures. The best course to pursue with badly infected nursery stock is to destroy by fire. When an orchard has once been infected, continual vigilance will be necessary to prevent a recrudescence of the canker, particularly during a season when the rainfall is exceptionally heavy and the conditions favourable to its rapid development. The possibility of its recurrence is due to the probable presence of old cankers on the large branches, particularly on grape fruit, the organism continuing to be active for a much longer period in these than in the leaf infections. The length of time which the organism can survive in old cankers, and in the soil, is a point which has yet to be determined, but our experience at Warmbaths shows that in grape fruit, if not in other varieties, fresh infections may appear after a period of four years. In February, 1915, a lemon tree was sent for examination from the farm at Buffelspoort, in the Rustenburg district. The manager of the nursery informed us that he had budded some 12,000 trees in January, that the buds took very well indeed, but on examining them about a month later he found that nearly all of them had died. The tree submitted showed canker spots on the leaves."

LAKE GEORGE.

FILLING UP AGAIN.

Lake George, a one-time expansive sheet of water, situated inland about four miles out of Bungendore, completely dried up about 15 years ago. As a result the location of the lake became a very fine grazing common, with abundance of barley and other grasses, which provided splendid feed for stock. Now the peculiar phenomenon has come about, when in one of the driest seasons on record the lake, without any apparent reason, has started to fill up. At the present time there is a splendid sheet of water some seven miles long by five miles broad. The depth so far is only about 2ft, but there is every indication that before many months the lake will assume its old proportions. As the water covered ground was good pasture land, and the water is only about a couple of feet deep and slightly brackish, the change is one that means great inconvenience and loss to stockowners who held leases for grazing from the Crown. The only recompense under the peculiar circumstances would be for the lake to assume again its depth of 20 years ago, when it was a very popular tourist resort, especially for shooting and boating purposes.

COTTON CULTIVATION.

EFFORT IN QUEENSLAND.

The Queensland Government has made valiant efforts to encourage the cultivation of cotton, but not with any remarkable results so far. It is persisting, however, and just now has a quantity of seed on the way from America for distribution to farmers. The last season's crop has just been ginned in a departmental machine, and it will be sold and the proceeds distributed to those who grew the cotton. The department advanced 1½d per lb on the raw cotton.

DETAINING LOST ANIMALS.

An interesting question as to the right of a finder of lost animals to keep them until the owner paid the cost of keep and other expenses recently came before a South Australian Court. Two ponies escaped, and strayed for a long distance, and were then driven from the road into a private yard. Both owner and finder advertised simultaneously, the former offering a reward of £2. The finder telegraphed the fact to the owner, who replied that the matter was in the hands of the police. The owner subsequently asked for the return of the ponies, but this was refused until the reward and out of pocket expenses were paid. Proceedings were then instituted for detention, whereupon it was contended that there was no unconditional refusal to give up possession, and there had been no legal detention. Plaintiff was nonsuited. The parties thereupon mutually agreed as to the payment of the expenses of the keep of the ponies.

LAND BOARD.

IMPERIAL MEAT CONTRACTS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

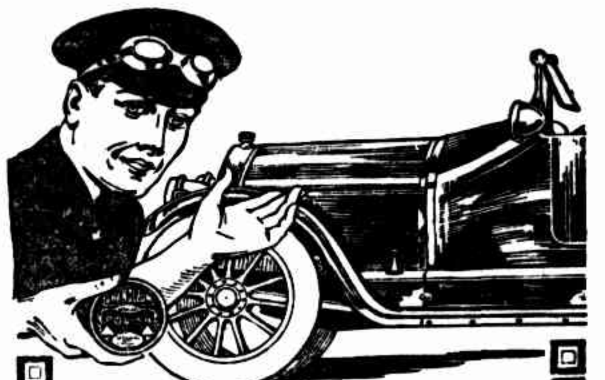

At a meeting of farmers, pastoralists, and others interested in the price of New Zealand meat, held at Christchurch, the following motion was carried:—"While offering no objection to the commandeering of their meat for the purposes of feeding the troops, we are firmly convinced that its handling opens the way to enormous profits being made by speculators. We feel that while the sale of British and foreign meat is untrammelled, the New Zealand farmers' interests are grossly neglected, and we therefore recommend that in any new contracts with the Imperial Government an advance of at least 1d per pound be paid for all meat commandeered for Imperial purposes, the surplus to be placed on the market in open competition."

ELDERLY WOMAN'S DEATH.

CONSCRIPTION AND THE LAND.

No good purpose is to be served by ignoring the difficulties of those whose living is directly imperilled by conscription as the policy of the Federal Government. When the man on the land is asked to vote "Yes" on October 28 his plaint must be heard. Farmers and primary producers are as earnest in their desire to help and stand by the Empire as the strongest supporters of conscription in the city; but they feel that they have more to lose than most people. They have already suffered in numerous instances by the wholesale recruiting of their young men; and in certain country districts there are very few eligibles left. They argue that the bush worker is not obtained for the asking. He is the product of many seasons, and perhaps is the son or grandson of bush workers. How is this indispensable adjunct of life upon the land to be replaced? In those districts where men of fighting age and constitution are still available the question is being asked in more direct fashion. Harvests must shortly be reaped and wool shorn; and serious anxiety is being felt about the future if conscription should be confirmed through the referendum. To these Mr. Hughes has replied with the assurance that special consideration shall be shown. Rural workers who have enrolled will be released for harvest and shearing; and the great primary industries upon which so much depends will be safeguarded against a labour famine. This the man on the land accepts as satisfactory, as far as it goes; but it does not seem to relieve the situation for those who cannot now get labour. The strain is being felt severely in the dairying districts. Cows must be milked, and pigs fed through the days and weeks till peace comes, whatever happens. They cannot be left like fallowing land, which will be all the more productive because of a spell; and if the work is dislocated for a month or so it will not be straightened out by official sympathy after mischief has been done. The fear is being expressed in the South Coast district that many dairy farms will be given up unless some relief can be given, so difficult is it becoming to keep things going. This is the argument of men who are apprehensive about their whole future. Their capital is in their land and improvements. They have liabilities like the rest of us; and as their skin is nearer to them than their coat, according to an old proverb, they are inclined to discuss conscription and the coming referendum as a matter too personal for anything else to matter. We make no apology, therefore, for presenting their case to our readers as it reaches us from worried farmers, dairymen, and pastoralists who are specially under the harrow at the present moment, or who expect to be if the referendum is carried. It is only fair in reply to point out that voting "Yes" will not prejudice their position if their case is dealt with promptly and effectively by the Federal authorities, as the Prime Minister engages to do. Men must be obtained to keep up a reinforcement of 16,500 per month, and even if farmers are likely to be sufferers again must we not look all round the subject? Is not this a matter of fair play as between city and country? The country districts that have done so well already will not be worse off if young men in the city are forced to take up arms and do their duty. Logically, the right thing must be to vote "Yes" to compel the latter to go abroad and assist or relieve our men at the front. Residents in those districts that have done less well, and are afraid of losing indispensable rural workers, have now the certainty that their difficulties are being considered. They cannot be worse off if pressure is to be applied to relieve and protect them during harvest and shearing; and if later on they are to be helped in keeping the production of the Commonwealth at the highest possible level they will be better off.

The man on the land should be ready to support conscription because his stake in the country is so great. He has more to lose than the town dweller if Germany is not finally crushed, because his markets are abroad. He is a citizen of the world and is subject to the world's prices. Therefore he is peculiarly concerned to know that the world's bully and ruffian is safely bound, or finally converted to sanity and good conduct. The employers and workers in secondary industries look to the local markets. A protective tariff enables them to counter competition from abroad; and while it is true that they will suffer as much as anybody if Germany wins, it is also true that in a stalemate they will still have their market. An ending to the war which does not see Germany thoroughly beaten will be the beginning of another war. It will be, as before, a trade war leading to the greater conflict which Prussian ambition and hatred will render inevitable. In the interval there will still be the Australian market for the secondary industries, but the primary producer will be in the mighty whirlpool of a world trade under new pressures and forced into fresh paths. Our whole future for safety and prosperity in marketing our main products depends upon a victory for the Allies so complete that Germany cannot rise again except as a lover of peace and concord. This is why the Empire must precede everything. The argument as against the Federal Government is still incomplete, we admit; and while fighting must come first, since our honour and our interests are one in the matter, there must be sound statesmanship in dealing with the things which are vital to our well-being as a remainder of the population forced to work while others fight. There must be some study of the conditions of life under war strain in Australia itself. When our rural workers have enlisted and gone to the front they cannot be drafted back for harvest to help in an emergency as has been possible in Great Britain and France. They are still half the world away, while our need for help on the land is greater than ever. This applies to all our recruiting. A day's travel takes the British soldier on furlough right home, and his people see him and rejoice. Our sons may long for home with a yearning all the stronger because they miss our sunny skies, but unless invalided they must be satisfied to be visitors in the home land. It all means a greater forethought, and better provision for meeting an emergency. The man on the land is really in favour of conscription, and at heart is a true son of the Empire. He has proved this again and again since war broke out. But he must feel that his needs are to be served, not in some far-off negative way, but positively, quickly, and fruitfully. If the country has been depleted of labour, and farms are likely to be thrown up or neglected, there is infinitely more reason in rallying the city to its aid than in finding employment through borrowed money in the city. At any rate the returned soldier who wishes to go upon the land could surely be given his introduction through this gate, solving two problems at once. His own farm or holding could come later as the logical result. What is wanted is the large thinking for a new situation, so that co-operation and sympathy hand in hand may relieve the primary producer while making repatriation easy and city congestion no longer a source of mischief.

[Written, after consultation, to express the views of the "Sydney Morning Herald," by C. Brunsdon Fletcher, 38 Hunter-street, Sydney.]

RUSSIA AND ROUMANIA.

A few days ago General Haig warned us that the value of the attacks on the Western front must not be judged by the number of positions taken or the extent of territory occupied, but rather by their effect on the enemy's organisation and on his resources. Obviously the same test must be applied to all the battlefields of Europe. A movement is a success if it helps to cripple the Central Powers in their efforts to hold an enormously long front, and occupying or destroying their men deprives them of the ability which they derive from their interior position and their elaborate system of railways. At the same time there are some portions of the battlefield which, besides their connection with the whole scheme of the offensive, have a unity of their own. The Russian advance under General Brussiloff, and the allied progress on the Somme, are clearly interdependent. The slaughter of Germans in the neighbourhood of Halicz and north of Lemberg will help the British and the French just as the failure of the picked regiments of Prussia and Bavaria on the Somme will help the Russians. It is none the less inevitable that the renewal of the attacks on Lemberg should be connected immediately not with the Western offensive but with the movements of the Roumanian troops, and with the march of the Allies from Salonica. The German movements at present show more forcibly than ever how impossible it is to keep political and military objects distinct after the manner of the historians and commentators. If they could concentrate themselves on the single object of exhausting the allied armies the Germans might shorten their lines, or if they have still any first-class troops to spare devote them to an attack on one of their principal enemies. They cannot do so for many reasons, of which the military reason is the least important. They wish to be able to maintain their supply of reinforcements from the East, although the Turks and Bulgarians in Austria are probably very few. But they must keep open their connection with Turkey, because the establishment of that connection is their most impressive achievement, and because it is from the Near East and from Asia that they hope to be recompensed for all their losses. If they are to succeed in this ambition they must defeat Russia and Roumania, and they must either keep Servia in subjection or they must arrange some compromise which will give them the command of the Balkan railway systems which they had acquired before the war. The Chancellor may have been disclosing the views of the General Staff when he assured the Reichstag that the army of Salonica was of very little importance. He certainly was expressing his own views, and those of the General Staff as well, in the great emphasis he laid on the importance of inflicting dire punishment on Roumania. If Roumania is successful, Russia, which has made that success possible, must become the dominant Power in the Balkans. The open road between Antwerp and Constantinople must then be closed, and at the peace conference Russia must succeed to Constantinople. If the Dardanelles were to be occupied by a rival Power, the control of the Danube would matter very little. But if Roumania were to emerge from the war the grateful and successful ally of Russia, another favourite scheme of the Central Powers would have been defeated. Roumania was to hold on the Danube the place which Holland and Belgium were to hold on the Rhine. The late King Carol might have consented to do so. His successor will not, whether the war ends in six months, as his Prime Minister hoped, or whether his countrymen have to submit to more reverses before their final victory.

As was shown by the Roumanian declaration of war, the Russians and Roumanians have another object in common which concerns them more immediately than the rest of the Allies. Austria must be utterly defeated if Transylvania is to be surrendered, and any part of Galicia annexed to Russian Poland. It would be clear proof that not even the German reinforcements and the magic of Hindenburg's name could keep her armies together if the Russians were to succeed in Galicia and the Roumanians were to hold their ground in Transylvania. Unfortunately the latest news does not warrant our believing that either of these armies has been completely successful. The Roumanians have been compelled to fall back on to their own frontier. They have done so in good order, and they have kept in touch with the Russians, but they have undoubtedly been checked. The Russians have gained some success in the neighbourhood of Halicz, and they are said to have inflicted enormous losses on the Germans both there and to the north of Lemberg. But Halicz, which was on the point of falling more than a month ago, still holds out, the Austrian army has escaped envelopment, and the northern line is still unbroken. We know enough about the Russians to believe that they will continue their progress in spite of any temporary check. Their services to the Allies in the course of this year have already been immeasurable. They have destroyed already one Austrian army, they have occupied the trunk railways of eastern Galicia, and they have given such convincing evidence of strength that the Roumanian Government have felt justified in risking their whole national fortunes. The Russians would not have been able to do this unless they had united bureaucratic efficiency with national enthusiasm in a manner hitherto unknown in their history. No official has been too powerful to escape the penalty of any mistake, however good his record. General Sukhomlinoff was imprisoned on account of the failure of munitions, although the successful invasion of Galicia and the defence of Warsaw were prepared under his direction. General Polivanoff, the organiser of victory, was removed from office because he had failed to prevent a strike in the Putilof munition works. No unofficial body was refused leave to assist in the national organisation however radical its tendencies. Many motives combined to stimulate this enthusiasm, the desire to be rid of German influence and the unifying personality of the Czar. But not the least important among them was the historical ambition of Russia to occupy Constantinople, an ambition which can only be satisfied after the defeat of the German expeditions to the East.

THE WINNOWING.

The new-crowned Queen looked out across the seas,
Her tresses fanned by springtime scented breeze,
Her shell-pink feet upon her golden sands,
A rainbow-tinted hour-glass in her hands.

A whisper creeping midst the listening throng,
Like some false measure breathing through a song,
Catches her ear and tarnishes her pride,
"The breath of doubt! My people will divide.

"Those who hate England with such bitter hate
As blurs all judgment; those who fear their fate;
Those who would creep as menials through life
Rather than win as men their way through strife.

"Who, petulant, beside the highways lie
And watch the busy stream of life go by;
To whose glazed eyes a dragon fly anear
Is greater than an eagle high and clear.

"Those, for such be, I call not. These I call:
Who for my honour would lay down their all.
Who see their duty, in whose hearts there lives
Something of thanks for all that England gives.

"Who, now, will keep my shores inviolate
And stay the murderer ere it be too late?
Life, treasure, all I claim, swiftly decide.
Who hesitates? My people will divide."

W. M. FLEMING.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

In this week's "Mail" are a number of interesting photographs in connection with the Anzac Mounted Division's fine work near Romani. We are also shown some of the Anzacs on their way to the trenches to take part in the great Somme battle, and others loading a trench mortar in the first line. Numerous portraits are published of Australians who have been killed and wounded at the front. A special page deals with the admirable work that is being done at the dental hospital in Chalmers-street, Sydney, where upwards of 125 soldiers are daily treated. There are also pictures in connection with the Enoggera (Brisbane) Military Hospital. There are numerous groups of Anzacs in England, Egypt, and France. The Russian campaign in Galicia is illustrated, and, as usual, there are pictures from all the fighting fronts.

THE ENGLISH MAILS.

It is expected that the English mails by the P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Medina, dated London, September 5, will reach Sydney in time for delivery on Saturday next.

THE STATE FINANCES

LOAN ACCOUNTS.

PLEDGING THE FUTURE.

II.

Before entering into any general criticism of the loan accounts proper viewed in the light of the Auditor-General's report, it is well once more to emphasise the dangerous nature of a practice that has grown up in the Treasury, and which should, in the public interest, either be discontinued or at least modified. The Government always has control of a large amount of trust money, running into a good many millions sterling. An action is pending. One of the litigants pays money into court, pending litigation, to settle the true ownership. Such money is held in trust. This is merely one example of how money may get temporarily into the hands of the Government. These funds rarely or never decrease. As one amount is paid away another or a larger sum takes its place. So one of the early Treasurers conceived the idea of utilising such funds in connection with the public estate pending the raising of loans. Here is the explanation of the Auditor-General:—"Although not permitted by the Audit Act, the use by the Treasurer of these funds is a well-established custom in local finance, it being contended that, while the credits of those various funds, shown to be £5,254,270 as on June 30 last, would be lying comparatively unproductive, the Treasury would be paying interest on some of them, and, it is claimed, unnecessary interest on loans which would be imperative if these funds were not used in anticipation of loans. It is urged that this would not be satisfactory to the taxpayer, and that a moderate use of these funds is justifiable. It must be remembered that the transactions in this aggregation of accounts have rapidly increased in volume, and that with the huge credit there is a danger of excessive use. In ordinary times extensive use is not without considerable risk, but in war time the situation may easily become perilous." Mr. Coghlan then goes on to quote, with approval, a similar expression of opinion from his predecessor, Mr. Vernon, in which he says:—"The amount of deposits or trust funds, of which the Treasurer is required to accept the trusteeship under Statute, is relatively small; the pronounced development of the auxiliary funds has, therefore, arisen through the voluntary action of the Treasurer, and has been presumably undertaken to meet pressing necessities. It is obvious from the foregoing remarks that the strength of the Treasury chest is being maintained by large deposits held for short-dated periods or at call, and it would appear that a stage in the development of the auxiliary funds has been reached when further additions would prove a serious source of weakness, therefore it would seem advisable that the strength of that chest should be built up by methods other than further additions to the auxiliary funds."

These views must meet with cordial approval from every financial man.

When the war broke out the State Treasurer deemed it wise to keep the wheels of industry going. He was doubtless well advised at the time. Then there seemed a risk of wholesale unemployment. Private employers were scared; private investors stayed their hands; and there was a danger of the whole machinery of production standing still. But soon two new factors began materially to modify the situation. First, the labour market was rapidly relieved through wholesale enlistments; and, secondly, the Federal Government began to spend loan moneys with lavish hand on defence. In these circumstances, and in view of the fact that money was becoming increasingly dear, the State Government should have gone slow. Instead, it went faster than ever. It spent some nine millions sterling last year on public works. What justification can it offer?

The Premier admits that his Government raised £40,000,000 and invested it in development works in the country during their six years of office. But he says, "We found the country committed to the North Coast railway. We did not begin it; it was not our choice; we opposed it. £800,000 had been spent upon it. We either had to let that rest as a white elephant or take up the job and complete it. We elected to take the courageous course of completing it. We did it, and have already spent £2,600,000 on the North Coast railway. Left to our own policy, we would never have begun that work. When we took office we found the Commissioners clamouring for duplication of railways, a work which ought to have been begun years before, but which was left for us to do. I confess it was begun in the last year of our predecessors, but years after it had become an urgent and burning necessity." During those six years they spent over £6,000,000 on the duplication of railways, on the equipment of railways—that is, upon rolling-stock and upon the works at Darling Harbour, and works at the terminus—£9,500,000; or at the rate of over £1,500,000 a year on the average. They spent £9,500,000 on completing the equipment of railway lines actually in existence. "That," says Mr. Holman, "was because of the cheese-paring policy too long persisted in by a Liberal Government committed to reform, which reduced the system to below efficiency level, and which had to be made up by us. 'A stitch in time saves nine in conjunction with the railways as well as anything else. Because that stitch was not done in the time of our predecessors, we had to pay for nine stitches in our time." The same observation, the Treasurer urges, applies to the tramways, on which they spent £2,750,000. These items put together make up £21,000,000 out of the £41,000,000.

Possibly the Government could not help these things. It had either to hold them up or go on. But they were really responsible up to the hilt for:—Railway construction, to the amount of £7,000,000; water conservation, £3,000,000; the industrial undertakings, £500,000; tramway construction, £1,000,000; water supply in the country, £1,250,000; sewerage in the country, £1,000,000; water supply, Sydney, £3,000,000; Sydney Harbour Trust, £2,500,000; harbours, rivers, and docks, £1,250,000; making a total of £20,500,000.

It is perfectly true that in some cases the present Government had to complete works commenced by their predecessors, or order work to be suspended during the continuance of the war. But it is equally true that the Government must take the full responsibility for the expenditure of many millions of new money under the Norton Griffiths contract; for instance, upon works that could easily have been postponed till a more favourable season. The city railway may be quoted as a case in point. The whole difficulty amounts to this—that money is scarce, and the whole of the Empire's financial resources should be devoted to purely war purposes. Secondly, the rate of money is high. We must now pay at least 5½ per cent., whereas we used to pay 3½ or thereabout. The higher rate that must now be paid will make all the difference between profit and loss, between low fares and freights, and high fares and freights.

There is no need whatsoever for the State Government to spend loan moneys to-day to keep away the spectre of unemployment. There is no such thing to-day. The Commonwealth Government is spending twice as much loan moneys per annum on war services as the State Governments used to spend out of loans. So the policy that was amply justified when the war broke out is no longer justified to-day. Instead, it has become rank extravagance, while being harmful to recruiting, and unpatriotic to the Empire at war.

GERMAN ARRESTED.

KINGAROY (Q.), Monday.

Mr. Archibald Blue, proprietor of the "Herald," died to-day. In last Friday's issue of his paper Blue accused the local barber, who is of German nationality, with circulating anti-conscription literature. The two men met on Saturday afternoon, when, it is alleged, angry words led to blows. As a result Adolph Hoffmann has been arrested.

FOR "YES."

APPEAL TO SUPPORTERS.

"GET TO WORK RIGHT NOW."

The joint honorary secretaries of the National Campaign for Compulsory Reinforcements have issued the following appeal:—

THE WORK THAT LIES AT HAND.

"We wish to impress upon all who want to send reinforcements to our soldiers abroad that their work in this campaign lies mostly at their own doors. There is no time for the creation of a great central body controlling the whole State. Decentralisation must be our motto, and local committees must be formed to organise and canvass in every part of the State. This work is proceeding apace in the larger centres, but no place is too small to be relieved of its responsibility in this great crisis. Just as a great battle may be won or lost by the action or inaction of a few men at a weak spot, so in this campaign, upon which hangs the future of Australia, the result may depend upon the energy or apathy of small groups in remote centres.

"We, therefore, urge, on behalf of the referendum committee for 'Yes,' that every supporter of the Government proposals will to-day get into touch with others of like views in his own district, form a committee, if there is none already in existence, and get to work organising and canvassing now. Don't wait for someone else. If there is a local committee, get into touch with it at once, and ascertain its scheme of action. Get to work right now.

"If the German Emperor were in Australia he would be very busy on the other side; you may not be able to fight against him on the field of battle, but you can help to organise against him, and you should. The 'anti' campaign is rapidly degenerating into a campaign of bogey-building and abuse. This method can best be met by men and women of known truthfulness and honour putting the facts plainly before the people with their personal authority. This is work which every man and woman of reputation may do right where he or she lives. Will you please devote this week to that work—every spare hour you have—and urge others to do likewise? Our committees meet every day, and we shall be glad to supply to inquirers literature upon every phase of the campaign. Our telephone is City 478, and our address Dalton House, 115 Pitt-street, Sydney. Will you please get busy today?"

HECTOR LAMOND,
F. J. THOMAS, M.L.A.,
Joint Hon. Secs.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Helen Munro Ferguson, accompanied by Mr. Eliot, private secretary, and Captain Haskett-Smith, A.D.C., will arrive in Sydney this morning by the Melbourne express. Their Excellencies will be in residence at Admiralty House for some weeks.

His Excellency the Governor-General's office, situated in the Commonwealth Bank premises, will be open on and after to-day, until further notice, from 9.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m., during which hours the visitors' book will be available to callers.

Lady Stanley, Miss Stanley, and Master Stanley, who arrived in Sydney from Melbourne yesterday, were entertained at luncheon at Government House by his Excellency the Governor and Lady Edeline Strickland, and afterwards proceeded to Katoomba.

Lady Edeline Strickland entertained members of the Greenwich, Longueville, Crow's Nest, Naremburn, and Willoughby branches of the Red Cross Society at Government House yesterday afternoon.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) left Melbourne for Sydney yesterday.

Sir David Hennessy was yesterday chosen Lord Mayor of Melbourne for the fifth year in succession. Alderman Cabena was the only other candidate, and he was defeated by 16 votes to 10.

Professor Sir W. Baldwin Spencer is a passenger by the Arawa, leaving for London to-day.

The degree of Doctor of Laws was yesterday conferred upon Mr. F. M. Gellatly, financial editor of the "S.M. Herald," by the Vice-Chancellor of the Sydney University, Mr. Frank Leverrier, K.C., at the regular meeting of the Senate.

Dr. Geoffrey P. Brown, son of the Rev. Dr. Brown, of Gordon, has just returned to Sydney after seven years' absence. He passed through the North Western University of Chicago, was appointed demonstrator, and obtained the D.D.S. degree. From America he went to the Edinburgh University and studied there for some time, afterwards practising his profession at Leyland, in Lancashire.

Captain Vine Hall has received a cable message from London to the effect that his son, Lieut. D. J. Vine Hall, has been promoted to the rank of captain, and has been sent to England to train a new battalion.

Mr. Thomas Hughes, of the Colonial Sugar Company, upon whom another operation has recently been performed by Sir Herbert Maitland, is making rapid progress to recovery, and hopes to be able to return to his office next week. He has taken passage by the steamer Makura for San Francisco for himself and family, en route to England.

At yesterday's meeting of the council of the New South Wales Chamber of Manufactures the following officers were elected for the ensuing year.—President, Mr. W. T. Willington; vice-presidents, Messrs. A. D. Walker, J. Clifton Love; treasurer, Mr. Chas. Anderson.

Inspector J. Arnold, of the Water and Sewerage Board, yesterday received a cable message intimating that his son, Sergt.-major W. H. Arnold, has been promoted to second-lieutenant.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION.

LABOUR CONDITIONS IN THE ISLANDS.

Yesterday the Interstate Commission, which is inquiring into the British trade in the South Sea Islands, resumed its sittings at Pomeroy House, with Mr. A. B. Piddington as chairman.

W. J. M'Gown, secretary of the Malayta Company, Limited, gave evidence with respect to the labour conditions in the Solomons. The plantations of the company, the witness stated, were in dangerous regions. The Government did not afford sufficient protection from the islanders. The company had to provide sentries and there was a heavy duty on arms. With the shortage of native labour it was suggested that permission should be given for the employment of imported labour from India or China.

Sydney Walter Robertson, in charge of the export branch of Dalgety and Company, said that his firm handled large consignments of copra from the islands. The trade was hampered by labour conditions.

Captain Bird, of the New Britain Corporation, was next examined.

John Strasburg, who said he had gained his experience as captain, pilot, trader, and plantation manager, described trade conditions in New Guinea, under German and British rule. Although not a German, he thought the German administration was very successful. The natives were much more troublesome now that they were under German rule.

Alfred Vaughan, Edward Desire Erman van Weenen, and John Cameron (Sydney agent for the Presbyterian New Hebrides Maritime Service Board) were the other witnesses.

The commission will sit again to-day, at 2.15.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

It has been suggested that a good many things are being whispered into the ears of men and women these times which are not said openly or when reporters are present to take notes.

* * *

That the suggestion is well founded can be proved by anybody with the time to stop and listen to the statements which are made to small gatherings of men in our public parks on any day of the week, but particularly on Saturdays and Sundays. The Prime Minister has already replied to some of these whisperings—those which have reached his ears. But there are others which do not seem to have been noted yet, at least in the public Press.

* * *

One of these was heard yesterday. The speaker was a young, athletic-looking man. Here is the particular whisper employed:—"All this talk about German frightfulness and Germany's crimes is so much clap-trap, used by Imperialistic jingos who wish to drain Australia of its working class, and then fill it up with cheap labour."

* * *

It may not be necessary to add that the park seat about which the assembly gathered and the tree under which it stood were plastered with the small gummed stickers of the I.W.W., which shout treason in every word. One man who was British enough to protest his indignation was sent away from the little meeting with one of these attached to his coat-tails—another "victory" for the I.W.W.

GERMANY'S WAR CREED.

Incredible as it may seem that there are any people still left in a British community—outside of those who are paid by German money to disseminate German lies—who can think like this, there is evidently some need to reply to such statements. These same people, too, it has been noted, have recourse to the old, old bogey that you cannot believe what you see in the papers.

* * *

Let us, then, take some evidence about which there can be no doubt. General Friedrich von Bernhardi is a well-known German authority, a man who is actually fighting on the Eastern war frontier to-day, and one who is recognised as an influential member of the German General Staff. Just prior to the outbreak of the great war he wrote the last of a series of works, entitled "Our Future—A Word of Warning to the German Nation." This has been translated by Mr. Ellis J. Barker, under the title of "Britain as Germany's Vassal."

* * *

Remember, this was before the war, not since. Bernhardi says: "German policy has the task of bursting the Triple Entente (England, France, and Russia), of establishing on an unshakable basis Germany's power in Europe, and of acquiring the necessary colonies."

* * *

That is a fairly candid admission to start with (see page 220). Then he goes on:—"We need not fear the number of our enemies if we call our whole population to arms and are willing to spend all the money required. . . Only when every single German does his duty, not only in battle but also in civil life, can we obtain the palm of victory" (pages 221 and 223).

* * *

Justifying the great war which Bernhardi knew was inevitable to satisfy German plans, he says (page 233): "A great war will unite and elevate the people, and destroy the diseases which threaten the national health."

* * *

"Everyone must do his best," continues this German of the Germans. "All true Germans must gather round the Emperor, ready to give their blood and their treasure for the honour, the greatness, and the future of the German nation. Through war to victory."

* * *

There may have been, of course, a few people in Germany at that time—the middle of 1914—courageous enough to withstand Bernhardi, call him a traitor, and accuse him of a design to smash unionism and introduce cheap labour. But the world hasn't heard of them.

* * *

GERMAN WAR LAWS.

So much for the argument that Germany didn't make the war, and from testimony uninfluenced by any possible newspaper bias, because written in Germany before the war broke out. Now for some German war laws. Supplied as an appendix to the same book is the code of the "Kriegsbrauch—the Customs of War."

* * *

This begins:—"To conduct war with energy, it must be made not only on the combatant forces of a hostile State and its fortresses. Equally strong endeavour must be made to destroy its entire intellectual and material resources."

* * *

"THE CLAIMS OF HUMANITY, THE SPARING OF HUMAN LIVES AND OF PROPERTY, MAY BE CONSIDERED ONLY IN SO FAR AS THE NATURE OF WAR PERMITS." A little further on we read:—"The study of the history of war will prevent officers forming views of exaggerated humanity. It will teach them that wars cannot be conducted without certain severities; that, rightly considered, true humanity lies often in their unsparing use."

* * *

Here, surely, is the most concise definition of German kultur ever penned. How faithfully these doctrines were inculcated into the military training of German officers, the ruined cities of Belgium, the outraged women and the murdered children of Flanders testify. And Belgium was an absolutely unoffending party. She was merely in the way. Australia, on the other hand, has actually dared to take the war into the enemy's country and to rob him of one of his valued colonies.

* * *

Yet there are still some people who ask us not to think too badly of Germany, and to believe that Australia is not committed to her last effort to overthrow those who practise such diabolical doctrines as these.

* * *

RIGHT ABOUT FACE.

Mr. J. H. Catts signs himself this morning as "General Organiser and Director" of the no-conscription campaign. Night after night this gentleman adopts an air of confidential mysticism, and assures his audiences that there is grave danger in conscripting the manhood of Australia, because he is satisfied that we will need an array of 500,000 British bayonets to repel some imaginary invasion that his excited brain has conjured up.

* * *

So far as the value of this private information which Mr. Catts possesses is concerned, he will probably let the Prime Minister have full details. But what a great many people would like to know is how Mr. Catts reconciles his two positions—first, as general organiser of the State Recruiting Campaign, and now as general organiser and director of the no-conscription campaign. It is either a good thing or a bad thing to endeavour to get soldiers to go to the front from Australia. Which is it?

* * *

A short quotation from one of Mr. Catts' statements while he occupied the former position will suffice. On December 9, 1915, there appeared in the "Herald" over his signature the following:—

SHOULDER TO SHOULDER.

"We shall need active help in every [illegible] and particularly in educating the public [illegible] the significance of the war, and what we have at stake. The Commonwealth Government has [illegible] a big task. We must show by deeds during the next few months that this State is big enough to carry its portion of the national undertaking. [illegible] will not merely be lack of success on the part of those who are directing the campaign. It will [illegible] that the great mother State of New South Wales refused to honour sacred obligations; [illegible] enjoying the privileges of citizenship [illegible] responsibilities and burdens. Every man and woman, from end to end of the State, [illegible] poor, has the individual responsibility to render service, to sacrifice sport and pleasure, and to put citizenship above selfishness. Our path is clear. Let us all unite to do our duty."

There must be some dire necessity for such a remarkable change of front. It is Mr. Catts's duty to explain it, if he can.

THE SOMME

VAIN COUNTER-ATTACKS

TRANSYLVANIA

SLIGHT ENEMY GAIN

SUBMARINES

MERCHANTMEN SUNK

OFF AMERICAN COAST

The Allies have consolidated their recent gains on the Somme, have slightly extended their line in places, and have repulsed several strong counter-attacks.

Owing to pressure by the enemy, following a marked concentration of troops, the Roumanians have withdrawn their lines somewhat in Transylvania. They have abandoned Brasso.

The Allies on the Salonica front are attacking the third Bulgarian line. The British inflicted very heavy losses on the Bulgars in the Struma sector.

An Italian communique reports that an intense bombardment is proceeding on the Carso plateau.

German submarines, operating off the American coast, north of Long Island, on Sunday afternoon and evening, sank six steamers—four British, one Norwegian, and one Dutch.

CONSOLIDATING GAINS.

REPORTS FROM THE SOMME.

LONDON, Oct. 9.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at midnight on Sunday, stated: Severe fighting continues north of the Courcelette-Worlencourt road. We won some ground.

The Germans heavily shelled the front south of the Ancre, particularly from Gueudecourt to Le Sars. We advanced south-west of Gueudecourt.

The enemy again attacked Schwaben Redoubt, but without result.

The prisoners taken during the last two days total 13 officers and 866 other ranks.

ENEMY COUNTER-ATTACK.

A communique issued in Paris at midnight on Sunday stated: After violent artillery preparation the Germans launched against our new positions west of Sailly successive waves, which were broken by our curtain of fire, without reaching the French trenches.

GAINS SECURED.

General Sir Douglas Haig in his noon report on Sunday said: We have considerably advanced northward and north-east of Courcelette.

The Germans, during a counter-attack in the evening north of Lesboeufs, recovered a small portion of their lost trenches.

Elsewhere, we secured our gains. We have taken possession of the whole of Le Sars, capturing 500 prisoners.

We completely repulsed a German attack on Schwaben Redoubt.

The Irish, Midlands, and Yorkshires carried out successful night raids at Fauquissart, Givenchy, and Loos.

The French communique issued at noon on Sunday said: Rain is falling. The night was quiet.

Our aeroplanes engaged in six air fights. We bombed Moislains, Vaux Wood, and position northward of Peronne.

GERMAN REPORT.

A German communique issued on Sunday stated:—A fresh Anglo-French attempt to break through between the Ancre and the Somme was unsuccessful. There has been a continued increase in the strength of the enemy's artillery fire during the past few days. General von Bulow's army by stubborn resistance and hard hand-to-hand fighting repulsed a gigantic thrust. The enemy only penetrated our lines at Le Sars, north-east of Lesboeufs, and between Morval and St. Pierre Vaast Wood. We brought down five aeroplanes. Lieut. Boelcke brought down his thirtieth.

CAPTURE OF LE SARS.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, writing from the British Headquarters in France, says: Taking advantage of fine weather after the heavy rains we attacked on Saturday afternoon the German front along a distance of twelve thousand yards, and captured a number of important positions, including the fortified village of Le Sars. Without waiting for dry ground the men who had taken Eaucourt l'Abbaye audaciously pushed out and seized a mill house west of the Abbey ruins. Heavy fighting is proceeding along the whole line from Le Sars to Le Transloy.

The capture of Le Sars removes another fortress defending Bapaume. Within an hour the British had fought a way across a tangle of trenches and shell-craters below the village, gaining the chief objectives east of Le Sars. North of Lesboeufs the British are solidly advancing, and driving out the enemy from trenches hastily scraped up. Our right wing advanced over half a mile from Lesboeufs towards Le Transloy, joining up with the French pressing on Sailly and Saillisel.

THE USEFUL TANKS.

A Paris message says that the advance of the Allies on Saturday afternoon averaged two-thirds of a mile deep on a frontage of eleven miles, the object being the levelling out of awkward salients, and preparing for the complete reduction of the third German position. The infantry actions were practically over in two hours. The Germans hurried up reinforcements to their threatened positions in motor lorries, but failed to prevent the Allies consolidating the ground won.

The tanks gave most useful aid at Le Sars. The German newspapers, in their anxiety to hide the demoralising effects of the tanks upon the German soldiers, represent the tanks as insignificant weapons, and picture a gigantic nightmare of a war engine recallinf Mr. Wells's wildest fictions side by side with an ordinary rubber-tyred armoured car, the first picture being labelled: "What England wishes the world to believe," and the second, "The real thing."

The Germans abandoned nine guns of 88 millimetres (about 4½-inches) when evacuating a powerfully-fortified trench east of Morval. This is the first occasion that this size of gun has been seen. It is apparently intended to attack the tanks.

GERMANS REALISE WAR

Mr. Thomas Curtin, an American journalist, who has spent 10 months in Germany examining the internal conditions, has commenced a series of interesting articles in the "Daily Mail" to show the laborious system whereby the Government is hiding from the world the real state of the country.

Mr. Curtin was assisted in reaching Germany by a letter of introduction from Herr Hugo Munsterberg, a professor at Harvard University, who believed he was introducing a stanch pro-German.

Mr. Curtin says the inner world of Germany now realises what real war is. The battle of the Somme, when the offensive commenced, did not attract much attention. Even the highest military quarters regarded it as Britain's final bluff. Soldiers on the Somme now admit that Britain is learning her business. The German losses have been terrible—particularly among the Prussian Guards, who had an awful experience at Contal Maison on July 10.

DIFFICULT PERONNE.

The French attacks at Bouchavesnes were directed at Peronne, which has proved exceptionally difficult to approach from the west, south, and north. It is almost entirely surrounded by waterways—the Somme to the west and south, and the great north canal and the brook of Tortille to the north. The latter run through a deep cleft, which separates the present French position from Mount St. Quentin. The latter is only 300 feet high, but the enemy has collected an enormous amount of artillery there, and commands all the crossings over the brook and canal.

ROUMANIANS RETIRE

POSITION IN TRANSYLVANIA.

LONDON, Oct. 9.

The Roumanian situation is obscure. It is evident that Marshal von Hindenburg has concentrated all his available reserves and given them to Generals von Falkenhayn and von Mackensen to punish Roumania.

Roumania has withdrawn several divisions, forming the original army in Transylvania, and has sent them to the Dobrudja. The German attacks have necessitated a retreat of the Roumanians in the whole of southern Transylvania, and the abandonment of Brasso. The Roumanians have taken up a new position on the mountain frontier.

The week's retreat was skilfully organised, and was carried out in good order. General von Falkenhayn, the enemy commander in Transylvania, claims only a few hundred prisoners, which are balanced by 800 Germans captured by General Crairiceanos in a sudden counter-attack.

The Roumanians, north of Brasso, are still in the Maros Valley, and are in touch with the Russian left.

A Russian communique states: Since the commencement of the frosts the situation in the Dobrudja and elsewhere is unchanged.

A German communique on Sunday stated:—The Roumanians are yielding on the whole of the Transylvanian East front. We captured Brasso, and have forced a way into the Alt Valley.

CARSO BOMBARDMENT.

LONDON, Oct. 9.

An Italian communique reports: An intense bombardment is proceeding on the Carso front.

We repulsed seven attacks on our new positions in the Vanoi-Cismon Valley.

ITALY'S MUNITIONS.

A message from Milan states that Signor Boselli (Premier of Italy), during an address in the Scala Theatre, detailed the progress of the industrial mobilisation.

He said there were now 1700 munition factories working night and day, 426,000 people being employed, including 45,000 women.

The production of machine-guns was 600 times greater than at the beginning of the war, the production of munitions 110 fold, and motor car production had quadrupled. The development of aviation was also progressing.

ASIA MINOR POSITION.

LONDON, Oct. 8.

A Russian communique states: We repelled a Turkish attack in the direction of Ognob, in Armenia, and were supported by our artillery.

Deserters arriving in large numbers report that desertions from the Turkish rear have considerably increased, sometimes whole platoons deserting.

AUSTRIAN BATTLESHIP.

REPORTED DESTRUCTION.

ROME, Oct. 8.

It is reported that an Austrian battleship has been blown up at Pola.

STEAMERS DESTROYED

OFF U.S.A. COAST.

GERMAN SUBMARINES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.

A sensation has been caused by the announcement that a German submarine—some reports say two—is sinking ships off the American coast. She is operating to the north-east of this port, near Nantucket Island. The first report arrived this (Sunday) afternoon, stating that the West Point had been sunk; and since then, until now (midnight) the destruction of other ships has been reported at intervals.

The ships reported to have been sunk are as follow:—

STRATHDENE, British, 4321 tons, seven years old, owned by the Strathdene Shipping Company, of Glasgow. She was bound from New York to Bordeaux, carrying freight. A Nantucket report says that 20 of the crew have been picked up.

STEPHANO, British, 3449 tons, five years old, owned by the Red Cross Line. She had just left New York, and carried about one hundred New York tourists and other passengers.

WEST POINT, British, 2413 tons, new vessel, owned by Furness, Withy, and Co., of Liverpool. She was bound for Newport News from London, with freight. She was the first ship attacked, and had already been warned by wireless from the British Embassy, and was racing for port when a submarine suddenly rose up and fired a shot across her bows. The crew of 39 was allowed to leave before she was torpedoed.

KINGSTON, British, 2925 tons, 15 years old, owned by Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., and registered in Toronto.

CHRISTIAN KNUDSEN, Norwegian, 4224 tons, 11 years old, registered in Porsgrund.

BLOOMUJYK, Dutch, cargo carrier.

Admiral Knight reports from Newport that he has information that the crews of the Kingston, Stephano, and West Point have all been saved by destroyers.

A later message says that the crew of the Kingston is missing, and that a cruiser is searching.

The radius of the attack is approximately 50 miles.

The Allies' cruisers, stationed in American waters, are showing the greatest activity, and are hurrying to the scene of operations.

So far as is yet known no loss of life has yet occurred. Many steamers and United States warships have been sent to the assistance of the crews and passengers, who are supposed to be making for port in open boats. It is expected that they will be taken to Newport, Rhode Island. Thirty torpedo-boats were sent out from Newport.

A telegram from Boston declares that at least two submarines are operating.

Germany's purpose in sending submarines to attack shipping on the American coast is causing much speculation. It is believed by many that the submarine or submarines have not come from Germany. It is pointed out that the submarine which entered Newport News on Saturday did not appear to have made a 17-days' voyage; while a report from Boston states that submarine parts have been under construction in Boston for some time, and, it is believed, in accordance with a German order.

The radio station at Charleston says that it was the German submarine U53, which visited Newport News on Saturday, which torpedoed the West Point.

All the ships were freighters, except the Stephano, which, in response to warnings, diverted her course. But the submarine suddenly appeared in a thick mist. The crew and passengers were ordered into the boats, where they remained for two hours before being rescued by an American destroyer.

One report says that the U53 is the latest type of cruising submarine, with a radius on the surface of 10,000 miles and a surface speed of 18 knots. She has two 4-inch guns, which she used in sinking some of the victims.

Arrangements have been made in Newport to receive nearly 200 rescued persons.

The shipping companies are greatly concerned. Some have cabled cancelling sailings, and many others have sent wireless messages diverting the ship's courses. It is probable that sailings will be considerably curtailed for the present.

There is much concern in New York regarding ships at present in the Atlantic. There are some 20 passenger ships between America and Europe, of which 11 are bound to New York, including the Canopic, Baltic, Espagne, and Cameronia; also some American liners.

PROBLEM FOR GOVERNMENT.

It is recognised that a serious problem confronts the Government, as this is practically a submarine blockade of United States ports. Officials state that though, technically, the submarine may be within its rights, the United States has already protested to Britain against British vessels holding up ships outside American ports. Britain contends that submarines have no right to use neutral ports. The whole controversy may be revived.

There is speculation as to how President Wilson will act in view of his speech on April 20, wherein he declared:—"It is poor security if passengers only be allowed to take to boats before their ships be sunk." He concluded with a warning that these methods must cease, otherwise diplomatic relations would be broken off.

NEWSPAPER OPINION.

The "New York Times" says that the unwelcome visitor is prowling and destroying in the highways to the chief American ports. Germany will not continue to assume this risk unless she is altogether reckless regarding the maintenance of friendly relations. One rash act, one single mistake, the loss of one American life, will provoke America's instant action. Therefore, relations will be broken off.

The "Herald" says: Practically the neutrality of the United States has been grossly violated. It is the highest duty of the Government to go to any length to end Prussian warfare in American waters without a day's delay.

The "World" predicts possible serious complications for the United States.

Other papers are of opinion that the Germans are facing certain defeat on land, and adopting the tactics of desperation on sea.

AMERICAN STEAMER STOPPED.

A radio station wireless states that a submarine held up the American steamer Kansas bound from New York to Boston, and examined the vessel's papers. The steamer was then allowed to proceed.

WAR NOTES.

RECAPTURE OF BRASSO.

The enemy's claim to the recapture of Brasso does not make very pleasant reading. Although we have received no confirmation of this news from Bucharest, except in the shape of unofficial messages, we cannot extract much hope from that fact. The enemy could serve no good purpose by lying on a subject of this nature, and it seems as if we must reconcile ourselves to the fact that the Roumanians have for the time being lost the use of this important rail and road centre. It must not be forgotten, however, that, although the roads and railways radiating from Brasso into Transylvania make the possession of the town almost essential to an army embarking on an invasion of that province, the town of Brasso is by no means a stronghold. This was evident from the easy manner in which the Roumanians secured possession of it after they had cleared the enemy from the hills between the town and the passes in the Transylvania Alps, to the south of it. Brasso, as we explained at the time of its capture by the Roumanians, lies in a basin to the north of Predeal Pass. On its northern side lies the Burzen Plain, but beyond this it is practically surrounded by mountains, the possession of any section of which would probably render the town untenable. The enemy, as we saw yesterday, approached Brasso from the north-west. Their announcement that they had stormed Sinca, 22 miles north-west of the town, indicated that they were approaching the heights dominating the town from the north-west. The Roumanians have very wisely fallen back to the hills in the south, where they will be able much more effectively to resist any attempted approach towards the mountain passes leading into Roumania at this point.

THREE SEPARATE EFFORTS.

An unofficial message states that the whole Roumanian line in Southern Transylvania has been withdrawn to the frontier. This means that a considerable area of conquered territory has been abandoned, and suggests that the number of troops which the Central Powers have been able to spare for the punishment of Roumania is greater than that which it was anticipated would be forthcoming. It is worth noting, however, that the enemy has delivered three distinct and separate blows at the Roumanians in Southern Transylvania. These blows have followed in succession, each consecutive effort being made at a point farthur from the enemy's base and connected with that base by one or more lines of railway. On September 22 Petroseny was captured, and the Roumanians driven back towards Vulcan Pass. Then a pause followed, and on September 29 the Germans claimed to have made good progress near Hermannstadt, about 45 miles east of Petroseny. Another pause occurred, and we now hear of the recapture of Brasso, over 70 miles east of Hermannstadt. These three places are connected by excellent railways, and the enemy would experience little difficulty in transporting a large body of men from one place to the other in the space of a few days. This is what appears to have happened in Transylvania. Aided by her railways, the enemy seems to have used the reserves available for this front as a kind of hammer-head. The first blow from this hammer-head fell at a point nearest home, the next fell farther along the line, and the third has just fallen near Brasso, which is still farther away. By the time the third blow had fallen, however, the Roumanians had officially announced that they had resumed the offensive in the region where the first was delivered. It would seem, therefore, that the enemy has not been able to spare sufficient reserves to permit of his taking the offensive simultaneously along the whole front in Transylvania. This being the case, it is not likely that he is at present in a sufficiently strong position to embark upon a successful invasion of Roumania.

MORE THEATRICALS.

If Germany desired to offer a gratuitous insult to the American people she could not have chosen a more effective way of doing so than by authorising the torpedoing of vessels practically opposite the front door of the United States of America. After the promises made to America regarding the cessation of the ruthless submarine campaign, Germany's action in recommencing operations practically in American waters is particularly glaring. In view of President Wilson's recent speech, the sinking of these vessels so close to the American coast constitutes, to say the least of it, an act of grave discourtesy which no other nation but Germany could be capable of. If it were not for the fact that all hands have apparently been saved, one would be inclined to the belief that the submarine commander was obeying the behests of the von Tirpitz party, and not of the properly constituted authorities in Germany. So far as the Allies are concerned, the incident will not cause any great anxiety outside the circle of shipping firms directly concerned. The U53 has apparently succeeded in performing a more effective voyage than did the Deutschland or the Bremen, but her operations are not likely to affect the war in the slightest, or to have any appreciable effect upon the British mercantile marine. Four British and two neutral steamers have been sunk not far from the entrance to New York Harbour. It is the scene more than the sinking that has excited Americans. The little theatrical affair was well stage-managed, and the Germans responsible for it knew that they could safely leave the advertising to the Americans themselves. The British have calmly accepted much greater losses than this, and the main feeling in England will be one of relief that, up to the present, no lives have been lost.

MAXIMILIAN HARDEN.

"That finishes the guinea pigs," said Alice in Wonderland when the second of these creatures had been "suppressed" in the novel manner described in Lewis Carroll's book, but apparently we cannot say the same of the "Zukunft," which has again been suppressed. Maximilian Harden's paper has been so often dealt with that one cannot help thinking that this periodical action on the part of the German authorities serves some particular purpose. In a late issue of "Land and Water" Mr. Hilaire Belloc suggests that Maximilian Harden himself is not the fearless, impartial, and independent writer we have generally believed him to be. "Witkowsky is a Polish Jew," writes Hilaire Belloc, "one of three brothers, I believe, but at any rate the brother of a very important financial personage in Berlin, who is at the head of one of the great banks, and who conceals his origin under the name of Witting. Witkowsky similarly conceals, not only his origin, but his close connection with the financier of Berlin, under the alias of Maximilian Harden, having the reputation of a free lance in journalism. He is the best possible agent for the Prussian Government at this moment, and it must be confessed that his activities are being used with skill. Under the simulacrum of an exile abroad on account of his too great 'independence,' he receives orders to write everything best calculated to prepare German opinion for the very difficult times it has ahead of it. The matter is probably printed abroad, but its circulation in Germany is winked at by the authorities, and, most important of all, is assiduously spread by German agencies throughout the neutral Press. The object of the whole move is to prepare not only the German, but neutral and belligerent opinion, for the idea that Germany, though almost invincible, appreciates her present difficulties, and would be prepared for a generous and honourable peace, and must not be driven to desperation. Those who desire to follow the attitude of what is best informed and most successful in the German propaganda cannot do better than read every quotation they can find from the writings of this individual, for he is without doubt at the present moment the most useful agent of the enemy. Now and then he intersperses his matter with violent stuff, apparently opposed to German interests, but that is only part of the game."

FIGHTING IN TRANSYLVANIA.

The Roumanians invading Transylvania have recently encountered superior forces and retired at different points along their front. The enemy now claims to have recaptured Brasso, which is their most important success up to the present. The enemy has made the weight of his new forces felt at three consecutive points in Transylvania. The first attack fell upon the Roumanians near Petroseny, above Vulcan Pass. Shortly afterwards an Austro-German push was made in the Hermannstadt region. The latest attacks have been experienced between Fogaras and Brasso, and further north near the western slopes of the Gorgeny Mountains. It is clear that the enemy has been making full use of his railways for moving troops to these most threatened areas. Up to the present, however, he has not shown that he is in sufficient strength to carry out a serious invasion of Roumania from this quarter.

SALONICA ATTACK.

THIRD BULGARIAN LINE.

LONDON, Oct. 9.

The "Daily Chronicle's" Athens correspondent says: The allied attack on the third Bulgar line is roughly along the Servo-Greek frontier. It continues vigorously, and it will probably take several days' hard work to batter in the formidable line protecting Monastir. German engineers supervised the fortifications for several months, and work has been feverishly speeded up since the Servian offensive compelled the Bulgars to abandon the Ostrovo-Kaymachalan line.

General Vassitch, the heroic defender of the Babuna Pass and Monastir, is attacking the Bulgars between Kenali and the Cerna river in conjunction with the French. The terrible losses sustained by the Bulgars during the retreat affected their discipline. Prisoners declare that the officers were ordered to fire on their own men at the least suspicion of desertion.

It is officially stated that over 1500 Bulgar dead were counted close to the British line in the Struma sector.

A German communique on Sunday stated:—We repulsed advances on both sides of the Monastir-Florina railway.

A French communique states: The Servians have occupied the summit of Dobropolji.

ANOTHER GREEK PREMIER.

Advices from Athens state that after M. Stefanou had failed in his attempt to form a Ministry, King Constantine continued to search the political dugouts and finally persuaded M. Lambros, Professor of History in the Athens University, to form a Cabinet.

M. Lambros is inexperienced in politics, and Germanophile, though he is not hostile to the Entente. Other Ministers will be announced on Wednesday.

The delay will enable King Constantine to have a conference with Prince Andrew, his brother, who is due to arrive from London and Paris.

M. VENIZELOS'S ESCAPE.

M. Venizelos had arranged to sail for Samos aboard the Atromitos. On learning that a German submarine was near, M. Venizelos changed his ship. The value of the ruse was proved when the submarine chased the Atromitos. Her signals of distress brought up allied destroyers, which saved her.

GENERAL STRIKE.

"LAWLESS AND DANGEROUS COURSE."

JUDGE'S STRONG COMMENTS.

In the course of a judgment yesterday in the Industrial Court Mr. Justice Heydon referred to the general cessation of work by members of certain trades unions on Wednesday last. He said it was submitted for his consideration during the hearing of the appeal whether the rule of the Court that unions on strike could not aproach the Court did not apply, the appellant union being one of the bodies which took part in the cessation. His Honor said it was a new point, because on former occasions the cessations of work had all been of an industrial character, whereas that was of a political character, and the Court had nothing to do with politics. The stoppage was not to enforce favourable industrial terms of employment for employees, but to bring about a particular political vote from the community.

"If the intention was to do this simply by meetings, speeches, and arguments," continued his Honor, "the action was still, however legitimate in these details, lawless and dangerous in itself; lawless because it was a breach of the tacit condition underlying every award—that work shall go on steadily and without interruption, except on the holidays allowed in the award, and that industrial peace should be preserved—and dangerous because it was very likely to cause reprisals, also because the throwing of a large number of men idle into the streets in a time of strong political feeling is to run a serious risk of disorder. The convenience and the interests of the rest of the community were disregarded, the wealth-producing establishments were stopped, when to check the production of wealth is to help the enemy, and losses which, in some individual cases, may have been, and in the aggregate must have been, serious were inflicted on many of their fellow citizens. I notice that Mr. Cassidy, of the Shipwrights' Union, is reported to have said that if his members had been told by their employers to take the day off they would have told their employers to wait a week before they came back. This reveals in a flash the true character of the action. If it would have been so wrong in the employers, why was it right in the men? Is it not evident that whatever the occasion was the act in itself was an industrial act threatening most dangerous industrial consequences—a breach of industrial peace likely to lead even to industrial war?

"But if, instead of being merely to provide opportunities for legitimate discussion, the cessation of work by the unions had the character imputed to it by the Prime Minister, in his grave warning and appeal, it became, in a very important respect, far more serious than the ordinary strike, because it was an attempt to influence legislation by force—to coerce their fellow citizens, instead of to persuade them. The use of a strike to compel legislation is essentially an act of civil war; it is an effort to seize power by violence; it involves a revolution, a transfer of the means of government from the adult men and women of the Commonwealth to such of them as may be members of trades-unions. If to ensure legislation or administrative action of the kind they might wish the unions had only to declare a general strike, it is evident that the whole of the community, men and women alike, except the members of the unions, would be disfranchised. If a general strike is an act of force, and I hardly see how that can be denied, and if it were effectual, if the public submitted to it without a struggle (as I think it would not do, so we see how perilously near it brings us to violence and disorder), it is evident that the Constitution would have been subverted by force, and that the real rulers of the country would be the persons who had it in their power to bring about a general strike. The present forms of the Constitution might remain, but only as a shell; the elected rulers of the community would take their orders from the elected committee of the trades unions as the Merovingian Kings used to take their orders from the Mayors of the palace. That would certainly be a revolution. Power would have passed from the community to a minority of the community which had seized it by lawless violence. Our democracy would have become an oligarchy.

"I have had to make this examination of the real character of the cessation of work on the 4th of this month in order to decide the question raised before me. I have come to the conclusion that there is ample ground to justify the treating of such an industrial stoppage as the Court treats a strike—namely, as depriving the unions sharing it of the rights under our Act. The stoppage of work was the flouting of the industrial law and an ignoring of reasonable obligations under the awards, and inflicted grave industrial injury on both the employers and the public. I rule, then, that I could fairly refuse this application on that ground. After mature consideration, however, I have decided that I will not do so on this occasion. Such a thing has never happened before, and in the condition of strong political feeling which exists at present amongst us, the members of the union have not, perhaps, been calm enough to see clearly."

SOLDIER SHOT.

WEST MAITLAND, Monday.

During a disturbance which occurred on Saturday a member of the Expeditionary Forces, named Private Michael M'Grady, was shot in the shoulder by Constable Best. It seems that another soldier, whose conduct was becoming disorderly, was approached by Sergt. Murray, whom he knocked down. Constable Best went to the sergeant's assistance, and was faced by a number of soldiers, some of whom assumed a threatening attitude. He warned them to stand back, but it is alleged there were cries of "Put the boot in," and Constable Best then fired into the air as a warning. M'Grady, it is stated, continued to approach the constable, who fired again, the bullet entering M'Grady's shoulder. He was admitted to the hospital, where the bullet was extracted.

CALLED UP.

MEN GO INTO CAMP.

CHEERFUL RECRUITS.

The first men called up who reported last Tuesday went into camp yesterday. Those in the metropolitan area reported at the Electoral Military Depot, at 9 o'clock in the morning, and after being formed up were marched into camp at the Royal Agricultural Show Ground, where everything was in readiness for them. They received the same treatment as A.I.F. men, and were served out with similar camp uniform and kit. During their stay in camp they will be under the same regulations and discipline as members of the A.I.F., and will be granted the same leave. The trainees will not, however, be required to undergo inoculation.

To give those liable under the proclamation who have not yet reported to the registrar a further opportunity of reporting, the depots in the metropolitan and Newcastle sub-districts will be open until the 14th inst. All persons must be medically examined whether they are applicants for exemption or not. This course has been decided upon to mimimise the work of the local exemption courts. Those who have already applied for exemption and have not yet been medically examined must report for such examination before the 14th inst. This does not apply to persons for whom heads of Government departments or of firms, where at least 12 persons are involved, claim exemptions. Persons who are classified as absolutely unfit and given a certificate need not apply for exemption.

The District Commandant states that the men who have applied for exemption from military service and who were not medically examined during last week are to report to their respective depots in the military sub-districts in the metropolitan area on the dates shown opposite the letters with which their surnames begin, as follows:—

A—F: To-day.
G—L: Wednesday.
M—R: Thursday.
S—Z: Friday.

It should be clearly understood by all applicants that it is essential that they must be medically examined before their cases can be dealt with. If in any instance a man finds it inconvenient to report to-day owing to the short notice he may report on the following day.

Arrangements have been made by the Commandant to ensure the attendance of a large number of medical examining officers at the depots, and he states that there will be no delay in coping with the examinations.

If classified as absolutely unfit, there will be no need for them to go before the exemption Court, and they will be given an exemption certificate.

THE FIGURES.

There was no reporting on Sunday, and yesterday's figures for the metropolitan district were not available last night. However, Saturday's country figures had been made up. They are as follow:—

NEUTRAL BAY DEPOT.

A BUSY DAY.

Yesterday proved a record day for registrations at Neutral Bay depot. At 6 o'clock it was estimated that well over 600 applications had been dealt with for the day.

Ever since the doors were thrown open last Tuesday the flow of applicants has been steady and consistent. This is, to some extent, accounted for by the fact that the drill hall at Ernest-street has practically to provide for men drawn from a northern suburbs population of about 150,000 people, embracing those from as far away as Narrabeen and Pittwater.

Anticipating that yesterday would be the last day for enrolment, a great number of A's, B's, and C's put in a belated appearance.

On Saturday, when 473 men were put through, fully 75 per cent. of them claimed exemption, and yesterday the desire for release from military obligations was even more marked. The general physique of the men did not bear favourable comparison with the earlier batches. Dr. Barnes remarked that the percentage of rejections on account of defective eyesight was very striking.

To-morrow all those who have received exemption papers but have not been examined, are requested to attend and go before the doctor.

AT BROKEN HILL.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

During four days of the registration under the military service proclamation 943 men presented themselves at Broken Hill. Of these 440 were delared fit, 312 were rejected, and the remainder were deferred. A large number of exemptions were applied for, especially by men on the mines. The sending away of fit men to Balaclava camp has already commenced. Over 40 left on Thursday and Friday, and another 40 or 50 are booked to go to-night. The rounding up of those who have failed to register will start within a few days, as soon as those who obeyed the call have been despatched.

RURAL WORKERS.

TEMPORARY EXEMPTIONS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

An announcement was made to-day by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) regarding the provision which will be made for carrying on harvesting and shearing operations in the coming season.

The Minister said that representations had been made to the Government from New South Wales and South Australia that if large numbers of men usually employed as harvesters and shearers were withdrawn for military service the agricultural and pastoral interests would suffer.

All men so employed, he added, must enrol. They could then make application for temporary exemption.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The results of the registration in Victoria to date are as follow:—Examined, 43,787; fit, 19,025; unfit, 14,218; doubtful, 8800; temporarily unfit, 1752; applications for exemption, 14,564.

TASMANIA.

HOBART, Monday.

Last week's calling-up figures for Tasmania were:—Reported, 2861; examined, 2852; fit, 1331; unfit, 927; doubtful, 439; temporarily unfit, 155; applications for exemption, 530. The first batch of called-up men entered a new camp at Western Junction to-day.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Recruiting is almost completed under the compulsory enlistment of single men in South Australia, and it is expected that the alphabet will be exhausted early this week. The claims for exemption number more than half the men passed as fit. The figures for the metropolitan districts, and those which are to hand from the country up to Saturday, were:—9907 examined, 5826 fit, 1922 unfit, 1934 doubtful, 225 temporarily unfit.

REFERENDUM.

NATION'S DUTY.

APPEAL TO THE COUNTRY FOR SUPPORT.

SPEECH BY PREMIER.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

JUNEE, Monday.

The Mayor (Alderman W. Hiscock) presided at a crowded meeting to-night, in Junee, when the Premier addressed his constituents for the first time on the universal service question. There were a large number of anti-conscriptionists present, and interjections were frequent. Mr. Holman's remarks were greeted with cheers, and there was a little hooting.

Mr. Holman said that all his life he had been against militarism. It was not because he wished to see Australians swashbuckling in other parts of the world that he supported the proposals put forward by Mr. Hughes. The choice before the people was that of ending the war with victory on the part of the Allies, or an ending that would allow Germany and Austria to arm to the teeth to renew the struggle.

A voice: Are you going to take a gun yourself?

Mr. Holman said he was prepared to go whenever the Government called upon him. The only way to prevent permanent conscription was to end the war in a conclusive victory. (Applause.) He had always been an anti-conscriptionist.

A voice: Then what are you doing now?

Mr. Holman said he was trying to avoid it permanently by adopting it for a few months. When his turn came he would go without whining. (Applause.) He wished to see the members of the German general staff placed on their trial for wilful murder. He hoped that every German officer guilty of any atrocity would be tried by court-martial and hanged for it. (Applause.) Within the next 15 months, if a united effort was made, he thought it would be possible to see those things brought about. At any rate he hoped to live to see that day. (Applause.) It had often happened in a furiously fought battle a small number of men brought about victory. Napoleon had said some of his contests were decided by a small body of cavalry. He had nothing but contempt for the people who raised the silly cry that if Australia joined in she could do nothing. We could do our best, and our best would be a good best, and it would have a deep and far-reaching effect on the fortunes of the nations engaged in the great struggle. (Applause.) He asked why Labour people who supported compulsion for home defence were against that policy. Now, if compulsion was permissible for home defence, it was permissible for service abroad. (Cheers, and loud cries of "No.")

THE DAY OF RECKONING.

The Premier said he was convinced of the necessity for some form of compulsion many months before Mr. Hughes spoke about it. The movement had been taken up in Great Britain, not at the instigation of capitalists, as had been alleged, but by the general agreement of patriots, who saw that further ecorts were necessary. To those who gave nothing, nothing would be given when the day of reckoning came. (Applause.) If Australia decided to do nothing at the present time the Allies would not say anything at the moment, but when the time came for dividing we would hear of it, and would be asked to justify our claim—the claim of a mere handful of five millions of people to the ownership of a vast continent. (Applause.) If Australia did not throw in her part she would stand disgraced as a skulking nation like Greece. If that happened the white Australia policy and the industrial development of the Commonwealth would not concern us very much more. (Applause.)

What would our industries be worth if the Allies were defeated, and what satisfaction would we get out of the building up of our industries for the emissaries of the Kaiser? (Applause.) Australia should say "Yes" to the referendum, partly because of the gigantic interests at stake, and partly because those lads who went to the front were satisfied that they would have with them the whole force of the Australian nation. (Applause.) Australia should stand firm to the promise made to their comrades to send reinforcements to her brave lads. (Applause.)

A voice: Who made that promise?

Mr. Holman: The whole nation. He would ask all those who, like him, belonged to the Labour party—

Voices: You don't belong to the Labour party.

Mr. Holman: Very well, he would appeal to those who belonged to that party to which, evidently, he did not belong. The party to which those young men belonged was a new party, with "No conscription" as its only plank, and skulking its only policy. The question was whether we were to be mice or men. Australia should join with the Allies and march forward to secure fulfilment of her own destiny. (Loud applause.)

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

The Premier was asked whether it was the intention if conscription were carried to intern all the Germans of military age in Australia.

Mr. Holman replied that he believed the Federal Government was interning all the Germans it could lay its hands on. (Applause.)

Replying to a query as to where the money for the conscription campaign came from, Mr. Holman said none was coming from the State Treasury, and he believed none came from the Federal Treasury, but he would not like to say that there was no German money on the other side.

"If the referendum is turned down," the Premier was asked, "will the men who are now being called up be released?"

Mr. Holman replied: "I don't think there will then be much more for anybody to do. It will be a matter for those who turned it down to take over the Government and ruin it." (Applause.)

Questioned about the arrival of Maltese labourers, Mr. Holman said the British Government would be requested to prevent any more coming to Australia while the war was on. (Applause.)

Alderman T. C. Humphreys moved:—"That this meeting pledges itself to vote 'Yes' on October 28."

The resolution, which was seconded by Canon Studds, was declared carried with 14 dissentients.

DEFYING REGULATIONS.

POST OFFICE OFFENDERS.

CIRCULATION OF ANTI-CONSCRIPTION LITERATURE.

A resident of Ourimbah received through the post last week an English newspaper, inside of which a handbill relating to conscription had been placed.

Seen yesterday at the G.P.O. by a representative of the "Herald," Mr. Webster, Postmaster-General, said that he was not aware of printed appeals to farmers and graziers to vote against conscription having been sent surreptitiously through the post. He noticed that the handbill bore the imprint of the "Worker" office in Sydney, and was authorised by P. C. Evans on behalf of the Anti-conscription Committee, MacDonell House, Sydney. Evidently the handbill had been placed in the English newspaper by someone in the Postal Department. There appeared to be some persons within the postal service who considered that they had the right to use the facilities of the Post Office for the dissemination of a certain class of literature. Others evidently thought they were justified in defacing envelopes by writing words of an offensive character between the time of the posting and delivery of letters. As a rule, these offensive expressions or comments were written in pencil. Sometimes the words were roughly printed as if to disguise handwriting. Letters addressed to Ministers and politicians who were assisting the Prime Minister in the conscription campaign had been treated in this manner. Several of the envelopes which were tampered with had been brought under his notice. He had come to the conclusion that the offenders were within, not outside, the postal service. He had issued instructions with a view to the detection of the offenders, who would be subject, on conviction, to severe punishment. The men who did these things knew that there were departmental regulations which they took the risk of deliberately defying. He would not tolerate this sort of thing.

METHODIST CHURCH.

A MANIFESTO.

The President of the New South Wales Methodist Conference (Rev. W. Pearson) has received the following manifesto from the President of the General Conference (Rev. Dr. Brown):—

In this great crisis in our national history I have been asked if I intend to give a pronouncement as President of the General Conference of the Methodist Church of Australasia on the important question of conscription.

To this question I have had no hesitation in replying that I have neither the power nor the wish to give any declaration with regard to the political issues which are involved. The Methodist Church has never been, and is not now, a political party, nor does it authorise any man to speak as its representative on any purely political question. The members of our Church in Australasia are citizens of the Commonwealth, and must themselves determine their action on all such questions as are now being submitted for their consideration. The one point on which all must agree is the necessity for the exercise of that charity and forbearance towards those who differ from them which the faith which we profess demands from us. But the war in which the Empire and our Allies are now engaged, and in the issue of which Australia is as vitally interested as any portion of the Empire, is too large and fateful to be considered simply from a political standpoint. The most sacred principles are involved. The things that are nearest and dearest to us in our religious as well as in our social and national life are challenged and threatened as they have never before been in our history. The struggle in which we are involved is charged with fateful issues for all the nations who are engaged in it and for the generations who will come after us. It is a time in which none of us can be unconcerned, and a duty is before us which we must each discharge as in the sight of God. With such a grave responsibility resting upon us we must individually, and as a Church, ask for Divine guidance and help. We must take the issues which are at stake into our most earnest and prayerful consideration and determine that any action which we take thereupon shall be in accordance with the dictates of a conscience enlightened by the Spirit of God, and free from the governance of all lower and selfish motives.

The serious responsibility has been devolved upon us of deciding an issue upon which there depends much more than our own immediate comfort or material well-being, and sacrifices from which we naturally shrink are demanded of us if we would do our duty and pass on to future generations the freedom and privileges which we have inherited from the men who gained them for us at the cost on their part of sacrifices equally as great. Our national existence and freedom have been committed to us in trust, and our responsibility cannot be discharged by slavish adherence to political party ties or by submitting to party domination from whichever side it may be sought to be exercised.

The Methodist Church and people have throughout this war, as ever in our national history, evinced an intelligent and wholehearted loyalty to the King and Empire. They have borne their full share of the tasks and sacrifices that have been demanded from the community as a whole, and have done this because they have regarded it in the light of a religious duty to do so. We cannot now falter in our task, nor shrink from any further sacrifices that may be demanded of us in the interests of the Empire, which interests we believe to be in this connection the interests of the Kingdom of God. How best that task is to be effected and in what way those sacrifices are to be made are the matters that are now immediately at issue before the electors. A right decision of these momentous issues can only be arrived at after full recognition of the duty which we owe to God; to the Empire to which we belong; to the men at the front whom we sent out with our solemn assurance of our sympathy, support, and affection; and also to our own individual character and conscience. The Methodists of Australasia, I am confident, will exercise in this great crisis a judgment influenced only by the highest considerations and after seeking the guidance of the great Head of the Church and of the nations, whose will it should be our supreme purpose to ascertain and follow.

Commending you to God and the Word of His Grace,

I am, Yours very sincerely,
GEORGE BROWN,
President of the General Conference.

AUSTRALIA'S PLEDGE.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

Senator Millen and Mr. R. Windeyer addressed a gathering of 5000 persons at an open-air meeting on Saturday night. The Mayor (Alderman Moroney) presided.

Mr. Windeyer said that it had been stated the war would be won eventually if Australia did not help. That, he added, was a coward's argument. If it was thought that Australia was slackening, and no longer desired to support the magnificent effort she had already made, that would prolong the war for months. The young man who might have to go and fight was raising "bogeys" to save him from doing his duty.

Senator Millen said that, compared with Great Britain, we had not commenced to get a move on yet, and we had not done anything to compare with what France had carried out. To-day the people of Australia were asked to honour the pledge which she gave, not merely to Britain and her Allies, but to her own boys when they left these shores. In conclusion, he urged them to strip their minds of all past prejudices and answer the three following questions:—(1) Is Australia at war? (2) Is she in danger? (3) If so, is it your duty to ward that danger from us?

Dr. Doyle, M.L.C., moved the following motion:—"That this meeting of citizens of Newcastle supports the principle of compulsory military service as outlined in the referendum question and pledges itself to carry the referendum in the affirmative."

Captain Grieves seconded the motion, which was carried.

WOMEN'S WORK.

On Saturday the secretaries of the Woman's Central Committee were busy receiving offers of help from women anxious to help in the referendum campaign. A list of speakers has been compiled, and meetings are being arranged. The following are among the platform workers:—Mrs. Hogan, Mrs. Burdett, Miss Ruth Beale, Miss Keysor, Miss Hall, Mrs. Cumming, Mrs. John Waugh, Miss Clair Collisson, Miss Dunn Dodd, Miss Ruby Board, Miss Gladys Marks, Mrs. Langer Owen, Miss Scobie, Mrs. Dillon, Mrs. Bogue Luffman, Mrs. Edgely, Miss Gladys Owen, Mrs. Mercier, Mrs. Mackinnon, and Mrs. Bethel.

AT THE GLEBE.

A meeting, convened by the Mayor, Alderman R. W. Stone, was held in the Glebe Town Hall last evening.

Mr. A. G. Ralston said that the referendum proposal was the most important question that ever came before the people for decision. He believed that if they decided in any way other than an affirmative vote the fair name of Australia would be dragged into the dirt. The name Australia and the word "Anzac" stood in the forefront of all Europe to-day. What would be the feelings of those men if Australia failed them? We were told in letters from the front that had there been more men in Gallipoli, Constantinople would have fallen. What they wanted at the present time was not munitions or money, but manpower. In the P.L.L. manifesto one of the arguments put forward was that the number of men we could send would be of no avail. During the critical moments of war small numbers of fighting men had swayed the fortunes of the whole campaign. What was it that put heart into the French nation? It was General French's contemptible little army. If the Empire went down in the struggle civilisation would fall with it. If it was necessary for anybody to fight for us, it was our bounden duty to fight for ourselves. Conscription was an organised and equitable system. It was much fairer for a single man to go than a married man. It would be a greater disaster than any which had yet overtaken the allied armies if there were a stalemate. No country would suffer more than Australia if such a thing came to pass.

Mr. L. Courtney said that if the men who were against conscription could only imagine the conditions on the western front to-day many of them would change their opinions and be in the firing line themselves.

AT DARLINGHURST.

A meeting in favour of conscription was held in St. John's Hall, Darlinghurst, last evening.

Mr. G. Overhill, who presided, said he was a Labour man, and he considered that no man who called himself British could do otherwise than support Mr. Hughes.

Mr. Lamond said that fighting in the trenches for the freedom of Australia there were over 100,000 trades-unionists, but, according to some of the members connected with the unions, they should be left a prey to German bullets. He had heard such men say that they would not fight even on Australian shores. The men who created the Labour movement in this State now stood on the side of the referendum. They could put aside the I.W.W. methods, and could make their appeal to the men who had the interests of Australia at heart. Whatever shortcomings the Australians might have, deserting a pal was not one of them, and for that reason he was satisfied that a decisive "yes" would be given on the 28th. If Australia failed to do her duty by sending her share of men, then we can look with serious alarm on what would confront us in the future.

In seconding a motion calling upon those present to support Mr. Hughes in his campaign, Sergeant Weston, a returned soldier, said that he, in common with many others, had nothing to fight for but their national honour. Their mates in the trenches were calling for them, and he and others went. He knew how much reinforcements were appreciated by the men at the front, and he felt it his duty to assist in getting the necessary men. He did not think that he would have had to go about the country asking men to enlist; the seriousness of the position should have appealed to all men who were not traitors. No married man should be allowed to enlist while single men were available. In the country he had refused to enrol men with families who had offered their services.

Mr. D. Levy, M.L.A., also spoke.

P.L.L. OFFICIAL RESIGNS.

ADVOCATE OF CONSCRIPTION.

TINGHA, Monday.

The local branch of the P.L.L. decided to endorse the central executive's attitude in regard to conscription by a large majority. The local president in consequence resigned. He said he considered that conscription was the only possible solution of the present situation, and added that rather than Mr. Hughes should be censured the executive should be censured for its opposition to conscription. The president said he could not possibly retain the position, holding the views he did.

MOUNT MORGAN UNIONS.

Information has just been received that all the unions represented in Mount Morgan, Queensland, have expressed themselves strongly in favour of the principle of conscription.

MOSMAN WOMEN.

SUPPORT FOR CONSCRIPTION.

A largely-attended meeting of women, presided over by Mrs. Stanhope Swift (president of the Mosman-Neutral Bay Reform League) was held in the Mosman Town Hall last night.

Mrs. Swift called upon her audience to realise that the successful carrying of the referendum cast upon the women a solemn duty, and they should take up their cross and bear it in the light of righteousness and freedom. The women should be up and doing, and show the anti-conscriptionists that they at least would not allow their noble heroes at the front to languish for the want of support. (Applause.)

Miss Collison, B.A., of the women's committee of the State National Referendum Campaign, said that the coming referendum had cast upon the women an unprecedented responsibility. She appealed to them to work for the carrying of the referendum, not only as women but as citizens of the Commonwealth, with equal rights and responsibilities. If they believed in the preservation of life they should see that sufficient reinforcements were sent to bring the war to a speedy conclusion. It was untrue to say that conscription was undemocratic. Those who objected to compulsion now did not scruple about compelling a man to join a union. Did they get the privilege of an eight-hour day without compulsion? It required compulsion to have the minimum wage placed upon the statute book. Again, people did not pay taxes of their own sweet will. They had had compulsion all along the line, and where was the logic of opposing it in a grave matter of this kind? (Applause).

Miss Collison concluded by moving:—"That this meeting pledges itself to stand by Mr. Hughes in the action he has taken on conscription, and to work towards the triumphant carrying of the referendum."

The motion was seconded by Mrs. Burton and carried amidst cheers.

BALMAIN MEETING.

"GERMANY STILL UNBEATEN."

Mr. J. Garland, K.C., and Mr. J. C. Watson were the principal speakers last night at the Balmain Town Hall. The doors of the hall were closed at 8 o'clock. At times the meeting was very noisy, and although the chairman (Alderman H. P. Scott, Mayor of Balmain) declared a motion carried supporting the compulsory service policy of the Commonwealth Government, lusty cheers were given for non-conscription. Many of the interjections during the speech-making came from robust lads.

The formal resolution in favour of conscription was moved by Alderman M'Kenzie, and seconded by Mr. Wainwright.

Mr. Watson reminded those for and those against conscription that Germany, still unbeaten, was holding French and Belgium territory. A cry had been raised that, because the Allies were partially successful, there was no need for Australians to worry. Instead of the heroic work of the Allies being a reason for Australia sending fewer men to the front, it was a reason why we should lend our aid with renewed energy and strength. The voluntary system had reached a point at which compulsory service was justified. The reinforcements were required until the end of the struggle, and only for the duration of the war. The argument of the anti-conscriptionists in Australia who said, "Let Russians and Indians fight while we stay at home," he characterised as a "black-leg" argument. In this regard he denied the accuracy of the statement that there were only 70,000 single men here fit for military service.

Permanent militarism in this part of the world was not possible, and workers were not likely to be frightened by the bogey of imported cheap coloured labour. No Government would dare to introduce cheap labour during the war or after the war. Two things they should let sink deep into their minds and hearts. The acceptance of compulsion by Britain was one. The other was "we cannot desert our boys at the front!"

Mr. Garland appealed to the anti-conscriptionists to think of Australia's well-won military honour. They should not by their vote on October 28 turn honour into dishonour. Everything possible should be done to keep Australia in the high place she had won in the war as one of the recognised fighting forces of the British Empire. It was pitiful to hear the unmanly shouts of those who said "Australia has done enough," and to have to listen to the excuses of those who declared that they would fight on Australian soil and not at the danger-posts of the Empire. The disloyal section of the community was doing its best to defeat conscription, but the workers, who deserved their freedom, the real democrats of the country, would, he was sure, make their power felt at the ballot boxes on Referendum day. It would then be made clear there was nothing in common between the honest workers and the unreasoning and irresponsible followers of the I.W.W. movement. For their credit's sake and for the honour of Australia their response to the national call of duty on October 28 should be a thundering "Yes," which would be heard by the Anzacs in the trenches, and by the invalided Australians in the military hospitals of the old country.

AUSTRALIAN LABOUR FEDERATION.

KALGOORLIE (W.A.), Monday.

The Eastern Goldfields branch of the Australian Labour Federation yesterday carried an anti-conscription motion by 48 votes to 6. A similar motion was carried by the Kalgoorlie and Boulder Miners' Union on Friday night.

RETIREMENT FROM LABOUR PARTY.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In anticipation of expulsion for advocating conscription, Mr. M'Lachlan, M.L.A., has decided to retire from the Victorian Labour party.

MEETING AT HURSTVILLE.

VIGOROUS SPEECHES.

Last night, at the Masonic Hall, Hurstville, there was a crowded audience to hear addresses on conscription by Mr. D. R. Hall (Attorney-General) and Professor J. B. Peden. The Mayor (Alderman Bradford) presided. There were considerable interruption and cross-firing. Women as well as men took part in the discussion, and at one stage Mr. Hall threatened to have one woman removed if she persisted in taking charge of the proceedings.

Professor Peden said some asked the question "Was the referendum necessary?" In answer to that he would say that the British War Council had asked Australia, Canada, South Africa, and all the British dominions to send every available man. (Applause.) If we voted "No" Berlin would be be-flagged, and the decision of Australia would be placarded as a German triumph and British defeat. If they voted "No" on the 28th, Australia was going to be doomed and damned for all time. There was only one course, and that was to vote "Yes." (Applause.)

Mr. Hall said that in the present campaign they had free speech and a free press. (Applause.) It had been proved that we had equality of sacrifice in connection with the repatriation fund, and equality of sacrifice should be shown by every fit man going to the war. (Applause.) We were not getting the men as fast as those at the front were being wounded. There was a lot of fighting to be done yet. The Germans were still battling on 85,000 square miles of territory in Belgium, France, and Poland, and the Allies had taken less than 1000 square miles. There was nothing left but to see the war through to the bitter end. (Applause.)

On the subject of Maltese labour, Mr. Hall said the Maltese did not come to New South Wales under any Government control, but as free citizens. The Maltese were just as liable to conscription as any other British subjects.

A motion in favour of conscription was declared carried.

PADDINGTON MEETING.

"NO CONSCRIPTION."

MEETING AT PROTESTANT HALL.

THE CABINET'S ATTITUDE.

The accommodation at the Protestant Hall, Castlereagh-street, was fully taxed last night, when a meeting against compulsory service was held under the auspices of the "Labour Women of New South Wales."

Mrs. Kate Dwyer, who presided, said that at last Friday's meeting Mr. Hughes had made "a frantic appeal to the most savage instincts of our women," and had most vindictively attacked the non-conscriptionists. Women had the vote which could sign the death-warrant of the manhood of Australia. Mr. Hughes had appealed to the women to write "Yes" in letters of fire; but if they wrote "Yes" it would be in letters of blood.

Mr. Catts, M.P., said that if Mr. Hughes was honest with the members of the party on his return from England, the others knew as much about the situation as he did. Yet, after what Mr. Hughes had told them there was a majority of the Cabinet against compulsion, and more than two-thirds of the total members of the Federal Legislature were against conscription. Many members who had voted for the Referendum Bill on principle were against conscription. So far only two members of the Federal Cabinet had said one word in favour of conscription—Mr. Hughes and Senator Pearce. He believed Mr. Webster and Mr. Hugh Mahon were in favour of it, though neither had yet taken the platform in support of Mr. Hughes. Six out of 10 Ministers, at any rate, were opposed to conscription—Mr. Higgs (Federal Treasurer), Mr. Jensen (Minister for the Navy), Mr. Tudor (Minister for Customs), Senator Gardiner (Assistant Minister for Defence), Senator Russell, and Mr. King O'Malley.

The mention of Mr. Tudor evoked loud applause, and Mr. Catts went on to say that it was significant of the temper of the party that no other member would accept his position. As soon as the campaign was over Mr. Frank Tudor would be reinstated. (Applause.)

At this stage two men seated near the platform got into an argument and came to blows, but were quickly separated and removed from the hall.

Mr. Catts went on to criticise Mr. Hughes' statement that Britain was asking Australia to do no more than other dominions. Only last week it was definitely announced that there would be no conscription in Canada. (Applause.) There would be no conscription in Australia. (Loud and prolonged applause.) Mr. Catts added that New Zealand was waiting to see the answer of Australian democracy before using her Compulsion Act to send men abroad. The speaker complained that the system of voting would lend opportunities for stuffing the ballot boxes. Mr. Catts scouted the idea that Australia could not defend herself in case of invasion, but said that three years under compulsion would absolutely deprive Australia of the whole of her manhood—married and single. This would spell race suicide.

At the conclusion of Mr. Catts's address, cheers were given for the speaker and groans for Mr. Hughes.

Miss Mary Matthews said Australia could not afford to lose a solitary man. If charity began at home, so did loyalty. Mr. T. D. Mutch also spoke.

An anti-conscription resolution was carried, with two dissentients.

An overflow meeting was held at the corner of George and Bathurst streets, Mr. Catts and Mr. Minahan, M.L.A., being the chief speakers.

WOMEN IN OPPOSITION.

The women's organising branch of the No-conscription campaign met at Macdonell House yesterday. Mr. J. H. Catts, M.P., was elected president; Mesdames Dwyer, M'Mahon, Maincke, Burns, Golding, and Scott Griffiths were elected vice-presidents; Miss Hughes and Mrs. Garnham were elected treasurers. The joint secretaries are Mrs. E. M. Seery and Miss L. Sullivan. A series of meetings, morning, midday, and evening, is being arranged, including addresses at factories and other industrial centres where women are employed. The following ladies form a speaking team for this purpose:—Mesdames K. Dwyer, Locke Burns, Lalor, M'Mahon, Melville, Lorimer, Kinchington, Jennie Scott Griffiths, Garnham, Seery, Maincke, Greville, Darrington, and J. Grant, and Misses Annie Golding, Belle Golding, May Matthews, Fanny Hughes.

SCARCITY OF MEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your leader, September 18, 1916, you say: "The argument that in a young country like Australia the remaining manhood is needed for national work would be more convincing were we in any way assisting the Allies with munitions." The Allies did not appear to be over-anxious for our assistance in manufacturing munitions. But, are we not a nation more of primary producers, and are not our flocks and herds, our estimated 2½ million bales of new season's wool clip, our wheat, meat, and mutton, an assistance and a necessity to the Allies? To us of the way-back and "Never, never," where our men and boys toil long weary hours mustering, droving, drafting, shearing, scrub cutting, fighting droughts, overdrafts, bush fires, struggling with the problem of reclaiming and improving Crown lands, long distance from railway—desperately high price of freight carriage, provisions, and materials—it sounds strange indeed to hear the "Herald" say that "our help can only be given in men." Do the city dwellers and those more fortunately situated than we realise the great work of nation building that is, and has been, going on in the heart of Australia? How vital a question it is to the nation that she should not be robbed of the great national workers who know their country and understand the work and the conditions, and can and will do it. How can the settlers carry on without the help of the men and boys who can do the work? Robbed of them it means that many families will have to give up the struggle and sell out to the stations, or be sold up by the banks and financiers. Only those who know can realise how serious the position is. These men cannot be replaced; the Australian bush worker must be bred to the job, and the men of other nations cannot do it without years of training. It is the folly of ignorance to talk of women doing the work in the meantime; and only for the fact that our boys and men are the second, and in some cases the third, generation of bushmen, it would not have been possible for them to have stuck to their posts and saved the stock during the period of drought experienced for the past nearly two years. Though the drought is relieved, in many cases the season ahead is not assured, and the losses have been in many cases 50 per cent., often greater, of the stock. Settlers are faced with the problem of all their capital sunk in Crown lands and stock, and a great and increasing scarcity of men who can do the necessary work. I know from personal experience.

I am, etc.,
M. M. KEMP.

ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONISTS AND THEIR OATH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I notice that certain individuals, styled senator, member of House of Representatives, member of Legislative Assembly, member of Legislative Council, are actively engaged in the campaign against conscription. They must each have taken the oath of allegiance. That being so, I would ask whether they are individuals who can be considered safe guides. Do they attach any significance to their individual oath or do they treat it "more Germanico" as "a scrap of paper?"

I am, etc.,

THREE YEARS' WORK.

FUTURE PLANS.

At yesterday's session of the triennial convention of the Young Women's Christian Associations of Australasia, the reports submitted by the delegates from the various associations throughout Australia and New Zealand showed that, generally speaking, there has been a steady advance in every department, and that the movement is year by year becoming more popular and more influential for good. Most of the branches reported increased memberships, and more ready response on the part of the general public. The delegate from Wellington, New Zealand, stated that 5 per cent. of the adult female population of that city had joined the association.

A recommendation from the national board, which was adopted, dealt with the need for organisation in unorganised fields. It was decided to attempt education and organisation in all cities and towns with a population of 15,000 or over, and that the smaller towns and country places, through correspondence and, if possible, visitations, be brought into closer touch with the association.

The appointment of carefully chosen members to the membership committee was urged. It was pointed out that at present the membership of the associations was only 8842, and by a big effort and proper organisation it was hoped that this might be increased, until it reached 5 per cent. of the adult female population of Australasia.

Believing that increasing prayer is vital to the continuance of true national life," the report continued, "we recommend that a greater effort be made to interest the public in the world's week of prayer, which is to take place during the second week of November, and that special thought be given to preparing for it."

It was also recommended that a systematised effort should be made to increase interest in Bible study by organising Bible courses suited to varying ages, and that special training for Bible leaders be provided. The board was requested to prepare courses of study and to establish a national Bible study department, with a specialist at its head.

The imperative need for personal hygiene and physical education was indicated by the board, which recommended the election by every association of a strong committee to be at the head of this department, and that directors of physical education, employed permanently and giving full time to the work, should be appointed as soon as possible. "Special attention," the report stated, "should be paid to the physical health of girls, and talks and instructions given on questions affecting the health and social purity of womanhood. There is a necessity for providing sports grounds and roof gardens, and to promote healthful and properly directed outdoor sports and games, in addition to properly-erected gymnasiums."

WORK AMONGST GIRLS.

The work the association is doing amongst girls was the subject of several addresses at the evening session. Miss Grace Burrows, secretary of the Girls' Realm Guild, said that since 1900, when the guild was inaugurated at the suggestion of the Bishop of London, it had spread all over the world. In New South Wales alone the membership totalled 3000. The trust fund, which aimed at securing for girls training in chosen professions, was perhaps the main work of the society, and in this State about 60 girls had been so trained. The guild was absolutely non-sectarian, and the committee comprised ladies of almost all denominations. (Applause.)

Mrs. N. J. Cocks, referring to the relation between the Churches and the association, said that the girls were not being neglected, and the aim of the Churches was to hold, inspire, train, and use the young women of the community for the service of God and man. The girls' clubs helped to develop and broaden the minds of those who attended them, and they had done much in the past two years in securing the best results in connection with war work. The final goal must be to make the Y.W.C.A. girls members of a Christian Church, and she hoped the bond between the two bodies would be drawn closer and closer.

"To find a friend for a girl wherever she went" was, said Miss Wright, the object of the founder of the Girls' Friendly Society. The motto of the society was "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." It was not started with any selfish motive, but so that members might help each other to uphold the purity of womanhood, and for mutual help, religious and secular.

Mrs. H. E. Barff, speaking of the work of the Australasian League of Honour, said that the girl members pledged themselves to uphold the honour of the Empire by prayer, purity, and temperance. Although the league was only launched in 1914, already there were branches in most of the larger centres of Australia and New Zealand. In New South Wales there were 1700 members, in Victoria 1452, South Australia 150, Queensland 150, Tasmania 143, Western Australia 80, and New Zealand 110, or a total of 3785.

Miss Mary A. Geddes, national secretary of the girls' department, referred to the temptations with which adolescent girls were faced, and spoke of the work the department was doing in helping to direct their thoughts in the right way.

The convention will be continued to-day.

SOLDIER SHOT.

HIS ASSAILANT ESCAPES.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

A serious shooting affray occurred on Sunday night in a house situated in King William-street, Adelaide. As a result, Garnet Jolley, a returned wounded soldier, was dangerously wounded, and is now in a critical condition in the Adelaide Hospital. It has been ascertained that Jolley and a younger brother, Rupert, with several men, were spending the evening in a convivial manner when a discussion arose regarding the war. It is asserted that Jolley, who is an Anzac, championed the Allies' cause, when another man expressed the hope that Germany would win. Jolley's ire was roused, and he was about to add force to argument when the man drew a revolver and shot him in the stomach.

The assailant escaped. It is believed that he is a stranger in the city.

PREMIER AT WAGGA.

PROGRESS OF EDUCATION.

STATE ENTERPRISE.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

WAGGA, Monday.

Before the Premier left Sydney it was said that he would have to swim across the main street of Wagga. But the flood, bad as it is, did not make that necessary. It did, however, keep the people of North Wagga, which is under water, away from the Eight-hour demonstration, at which Mr. Holman was the principal speaker. This is the first flood since 1901, but then the water made its way to the main thoroughfares. The river is still rising, and already many householders have had to leave their dwellings.

Mr. Holman, who is accompanied by Mr. Osborne, M.L.A., Mrs. Osborne, and Mr. Boston, member for the district, was due at Wagga at 9.30 a.m., but owing to the derailment of a goods train farther south, it was nearly 11 o'clock before he arrived.

After inspecting the convent school, Mr. Holman, in addressing the pupils, said the Government had endeavoured to bring the Roman Catholic and State schools more into touch. The Government had worked in with the Roman Catholic education authorities, and had been able to do a great deal to make for the efficiency of the schools. The pupils did not know how privileged they were to be educated in such a school, but in after years they would appreciate it.

Speaking at the laying of the foundation-stone of the new high school building, which is to cost £7000, and will make provision for 200 pupils, the Premier said the Government could not bring the University into the country, but it could give everybody an opportunity to enter the University. The Government had entered upon a definite step in the education policy, which would be of incalculable benefit to the people. The Government wished to take the highest forms of education into the bush. The healthy surroundings of country life produced the deepest thinkers the world had ever seen.

In proposing the "State Ministry and Parliament" at the Eight-hour banquet, Mr. Ben Box said the Holman Cabinet was the best Government the country had ever had.

Mr. Holman, in responding, said that eight million acres of land had been rescued from idleness by his Ministry. There had been in connection with land legislation in New South Wales an economic revolution without parallel in our history. The railways six years ago had practically ceased to work because of the congestion on the main trunk lines, but the Government by giving increased facilities had turned the railway system from the phantom system which it was to a system that enabled the producer with certainty to get his products to Sydney. The Government had revolutionised the education system of the State. Representatives of other States had visited New South Wales to see how they could catch up with our methods.

Referring to the public health policy, Mr. Holman said the fact that hundreds of doctors and nurses had been called to the front had interfered with the proposals of the Government, but the Ministry had looked after the important matter of the preservation of infant life, and had also declared war on the white plague and the red plague.

Dealing with finance, Mr. Holman, said New South Wales was the only State that had carried on during the war without an annually recurring deficit. They had been able to do so because they had re-adjusted the finances and placed the burden on the shoulders of those best able to bear it. While the Government had not carried into effect all its proposed industrial legislation, in no part of the world had the claims of the workers received a greater measure of legislative treatment than in New South Wales during the last five years.

GOVERNMENT AND THE WAR.

After six years of office he felt that the members of the Ministry had not been unfaithful servants. If the war had produced in our midst an army of unemployed fifty thousand strong, as it would have produced only for the measures taken by the Government, the eight-hour principle and every other principle would have gone down stream. What could unionism do with a large army of unemployed? They all knew what would happen to wages with the unemployed knocking at the gates, and neither strikes nor arbitration could maintain trade rates. If at the outset of the war the Government had not taken the strongest measures to get everybody into some sort of work it would not have been long before there was an army of thirty thousand unemployed. The Government by, maintaining employment throughout the crisis, had been a factor in maintaining the status of the workers.

"I hope," the Premier concluded, "that this march of democratic progress will continue in New South Wales whether this Government or some other Government is in power." (Loud applause.)

Mr. Boston expressed a hope that nothing would sever Mr. Holman's connection with the Labour party.

Mr. Osborne, replying to an interjection, said it must not be thought that every man in the industrial movement was an angel. There were men in that movement who would be very much better out of it. There was a little section in Sydney that said that the Government had not done anything because everything accomplished was not for their benefit.

Mr. J. Woods, vice-president of the Wharf Labourers' Union was among those present.

FLOODS.

DAMAGE ON THE LACHLAN.

HEAVY LOSSES.

FORBES, Monday.

In the Lachlan Valley this will be known as the year of floods, as seven of considerable magnitude have occurred since the wet season commenced; but none so serious as the last. Owing to the heavy rainfall along the watershed, a great body of water rolled down the river and struck Forbes with startling suddenness yesterday about noon. The town was soon surrounded, and all communication cut off from Camp Hill and North Hill, the water in the channels being 20ft deep. It continued rising till midnight, and is now gradually subsiding.

While a party in a 'bus were returning from the railway station in Dowling-street the horses were swept off their feet and drowned. Three of the occupants, Messrs. Joseph Girdham, John Girdham, and Patrick Umpleby, climbed on top of the 'bus. Mr. W. C. Brooke was swept to the branches of a tree. They remained in their perilous position for two hours.

A boy named Joseph Hurley was swept down the stream about a mile and was drowned. In two or three other cases persons trying to cross the rushing waters had their horses drowned and vehicles lost, the owners being rescued with difficulty.

A great deal of damage was done to property and crops, and by the drowning of stock Mr. J. Elliott, of Grove Hill, lost 70 cattle. Other residents along the river suffered in a proportionate degree.

FIRE ON A COLLIER.

INCENDIARISM SUSPECTED.

What is considered by the police to be a deliberate attempt to set fire to the steam collier South Bulli, the property of the Bellambi Coal Co., Ltd., was made on Saturday evening. The South Bulli was lying alongside the steamer Arawa, coaling operations having ceased at 4 o'clock, and at 11 p.m. a stack of coal baskets stored in the starboard alley-way was seen to be on fire. A sheet of flame estimated to extend to 20ft on either side was issuing from them. The chief officer of the Arawa and members of the crew quickly got a hose to work, and extinguished the flames, but not before the baskets were totally burned. The decks were scorched, and a bulkhead was buckled by the intense heat. The fire took place alongside the lamp-room and oil store. Fortunately the iron doors prevented the flames from entering.

An inquiry was held by the police yesterday, at which the superintending engineer proved conclusively that without the aid of some highly inflammable chemical it was impossible to reduce the cane of which the baskets were made to ashes. Some cane from similar baskets to those destroyed was subjected to flames, but it merely smouldered, and the same result was obtained when pieces dipped in kerosene were set fire to. The kerosene merely burned off them. Everything pointed to the fire having been caused by incendiaries, who used some chemical which was not generally known.

Mr. F. G. Waley, the manager of the Bellambi Coal Company, stated yesterday that, whatever the chemical was, it must have been extremely powerful to reduce the baskets, which were sodden with the recent rain, to ashes in less than 10 minutes. He added that the men who worked on the South Bulli were old and trusted employees of the company.

RECRUITING.

A GOOD MUSTER.

Out of 221 men who offered themselves for enlistment at Victoria Barracks yesterday, 15, were accepted.

The fact that men are being compelled to report under the proclamation has affected voluntary recruiting to the extent of adding to the figures of the free recruits. Yesterday morning there was a long queue of men outside the examining office at an early hour, and the enrolling officer and his staff and the doctors were kept busy the day through. The standard of men offering was high, and there were very few of the obviously unfit who rolled up in big number just prior to Oct. 2. A large number of men from the country, farmers, graziers, and station hands, were among the applicants for military service. "They've come down," said a member of the staff, "for the races in most instances, and having found the races off or not up to expectations they have come to us for a better job. They are a fine lot of men, too, and the doctors don't have to worry much over them."

The men from the land didn't have it all their own way, for many good men from the city and suburbs were in the queue, including a couple of law students, a bricklayer, a poultry farmer from Botany, a wireworker, clerks, labourers, and as usual a number of men previously engaged in the motor business.

Mr. R. T. Lamble, of E. Way and Company, and second son of Mr. Thomas Lamble, partner of the firm, was last week presented by the employees with a wristlet luminous watch on the eve of his departure for Melbourne, where he will finish his training prior to embarking for the front. ## STATE POLITICS.

THE PROPOSED COALITION.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

WAGGA, Monday.

The leader of the Progressive party (Mr. Beeby), who is visiting Wagga, made the following statement regarding the State political situation:—"I do not think the proposed coalition between the Parliamentary Liberal and Labour parties is serious. A few members of the Government and Opposition sides have evidently been talking things over, with a view to avoiding an election; but, as far as I know, no official negotiations of any kind have occurred. Any attempt to coalesce without an immediate election will not, I think, be entertained. No doubt an honest effort to divide politics on some new lines, which would force the extremists, represented by the P.L.L. executive, into a separate camp will be seriously entertained by the State, but a mere temporary alliance to help politicians out of present difficulties, and to avoid a general election, will be bitterly resented by the electorates. We are getting nearer every day to the birth of the great middle democratic party, which is ultimately to govern Australia, but when this party does come it will be the result of an honest understanding between all those who are afraid of a growing domination of extremists. It will not be merely a temporary party manoeuvre."

TOTTENHAM MURDER.

THREE MEN COMMITTED.

MEMBERS OF THE I.W.W.

At the Coroner's Court, Tottenham, the coroner held an inquiry into the death of Constable George Joss Duncan, who died from the effects of bullet wounds fired at him on September 26, at the Tottenham police station. The Coroner, Mr. J. Patterson, returned a verdict of murder, feloniously and maliciously committed by Roland Kennedy, Frank Franz, and Herbert Kennedy, and committed them for trial.

Evidence was given by Dr. T. D. Bertram that death was due to bullet wounds, but he had been unable to find any bullets in the body.

A. L. Travis, a smelter, deposed that he resided within a few chains of where the deceased was shot. On September 26, about 9 p.m., whilst he was in bed, he was roused by three reports, which he thought were rifle shots.

William Henry, a tinsmith, residing at Tottenham, said that on Tuesday, September 26, at about 9 p.m., he heard two shots fired, and immediately after heard cries of "Murder." Witness got out of bed and dressed himself, and then went to investigate. He saw someone leaning on a wire fence, and heard groaning. The man was Constable Duncan. As witness got to him he collapsed, and on being asked what was the matter made no reply.

George Fishpool, a mine manager, stated that he witnessed the late constable arresting a man at Tottenham on the Monday previous to his murder. When the man was arrested a crowd congregated and hooted. Witness saw amongst the crowd Roland Kennedy, but not Franz. After the constable had locked the arrested man up he returned and approached Kennedy, and spoke to him.

Constable S. L. M'Intosh said that he arrived on the scene of the murder on September 26. He searched the body of the constable and found a pocket book, in which was an entry referring to Roland Kennedy, as follows:—"6 p.m. on the 25th Sept., 1916, behaving in an offensive manner." On a table in the room witness found a summons and information sheet ready to be signed by a magistrate for Roland Kennedy, charging him with behaving in an offensive manner.

Inspector P. A. Whitfield, stationed at Forbes, stated that on September 28 he interviewed Frank Franz at the police station. Franz told him that his father was a German. He denied he was excited when the late constable arrested a man named Wann, and that he went looking for deceased with his pocket full of stones. Franz told the inspector he had four rifles at his residence, which he used for kangaroo shooting. Franz then asked the inspector who was in charge of the police, and when told said he would like to speak to witness alone. When alone he asked the inspector, "What about his tea?" Witness then let him go. On the following day Franz told the inspector he wanted to tell him something which he could not keep to himself any longer, as he had not slept for the last few nights. He then told witness that the two Kennedys were the men who shot Constable Duncan, though he also fired a shot. Franz further stated that he had been led astray by the I.W.W. He had been working in the district for 11 years.

Detective P. J. Downey said that he was sent to Tottenham to make inquiries. He saw Roland Kennedy, and told him that he wanted to speak to him in connection with the constable's murder. Kennedy told him that he knew nothing about it. Witness then asked Kennedy whether he and his brother were active members of the I.W.W., to which Kennedy replied "Yes." Witness then said, "Do you advocate the destruction of life and property?" Kennedy replied "No." Witness asked Kennedy whether he had a rifle, and, on being told yes, asked when it was last used. Kennedy said about a week previously he fired at some rabbits. Witness read over a statement made by Franz to Kennedy. The effect on Kennedy was such that witness thought he would collapse. Kennedy was then arrested and charged with murdering the constable. He asked to be allowed to make a statement. After witness had cautioned him he admitted that he and Franz took part in the shooting of the constable. On the night of the murder he and Franz went, with their rifles, to Herbert Kennedy, but the latter refused to have anything to do with the project. Franz and Roland Kennedy then went to the police station and fired at the constable through the window whilst he was at the typewriter. Both of them fired twice, but one of Kennedy's cartridges misfired.

Detective Devlin stated that he spoke to Herbert Kennedy in reference to the murder, and asked him for a statement of his movements during the previous 48 hours. Witness also asked him if he was a member of the I.W.W., and identified himself with that body's activities. To this he replied "Yes," but said he did not believe in its policy of the destruction of life and property, because he said it would be a folly to kill a king or a policeman, because as soon as they were gone others would be put in their place. "I believe," he continued, "in social reforms where such people can be done without." Kennedy was then allowed to go, but later was arrested by witness and charged with the murder of Constable Duncan. Franz's statement was read over to him, and he vigorously denied it. Kennedy made a statement detailing his movements up to the murder, and denying all knowledge of it.

Herbert Kennedy reserved his defence, and Frank Franz and Roland Kennedy refused to give evidence.

NEW ZEALANDERS.

MINISTERS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Oct. 8.

The Prime Minister and Finance Minister of New Zealand—Mr. W. F. Massey and Sir Joseph Ward—arrived secretly in England. Even Anglo-New Zealanders were not aware of the date of arrival or the fact that the Ministers were aboard the Rotorua.

Mr. Massey, interviewed to-day, said they were visiting Britain at the Government's invitation to discuss matters of a confidential nature, including important commercial problems, such as the meat supply for the troops and future trading with Germany and Austria. No loan was in contemplation. New Zealand fortunately had all the money she required.

Sir Joseph Ward emphasised their interest in the trip through the Panama Canal. There was no question about it being a temporary scheme. It was one of the engineering and commercial wonders of the world, and only men of great prescience could forecast its commercial and strategical effects upon the Empire. Landslides only affected the Culebra cut, and the weak spots will doubtless be excreted up, and the canal become finally ready for permanent traffic.

The Ministers visited the New Zealanders in hospital at Walton, where the men received them with cheers and cries of "Kia Ora."

DOMINIONS' LOYALTY.

The "Times," in a leader, welcomes the visit of Mr. Massey and Sir Joseph Ward. Though the leaders of the dominions, it says, have not been allowed to meet as an Imperial Conference, they have devoted themselves with such single-minded energy to the organisation of their resources that they have succeeded in doing singly the work which the Imperial Conference would have enabled them to do in combination. The dominions made our cause their own, and all was done as though it was the most commonplace and ordinary thing. The people of Britain are deeply grateful. Mr. Massey and Sir Joseph Ward come at a moment when the long strain of preparation is beginning to give place to the full strength of accomplishment. Her Military Service Bill is a signal proof of New Zealand's devotion to the British cause.

"THE TIVOLI FOLLIES."

The Tivoli Follies were warmly welcomed last night on their return with a bright new entertainment of fun and frolic, which lasted five score minutes, but was slipped through with such smartness and gaiety that it was over all too soon.

Vera Pearce introduces new songs and scenes, and wears her most stylish costumes, all black lace and gold bullion, in "The Walter and the Lover," the title referring to that old favourite, Walter Weems, and a new one, Al. Prince. The situation between Miss Pearce and the black waiter who didn't understand his business was the same as before, but the dialogue was different, and the house roared when Mr. Weems described the nurse as the "emu," and on the question of "gander" pronounced it, after deliberate consideration, "a goose's husband!" Everyone loves the comedian for the cheerful innocence and happy conviction of his smile when he makes one of these joyous discoveries. Returning to the Queen of the Follies, she has a picturesque song-number in "Omar Khayyam," in which she appears in white, as an audacious youth, who shows the white feather nonetheless, attended by 12 Persian maids in white coloured garments of diaphanous tissue. Jay Cannot is facetiously in the foreground throughout the evening, and joins with Messrs. Weems, Welch, and Rego in a practical joke. Herein Miss Helen Deerie accepts "The Kiss" under ludicrous circumstances connected with bank-notes, which she ultimately bestows upon the wizened little Scotchman with which she leaves the stage—and the remaining deluded admirers!

There is very little in Mr. Cannot's Mexican song, "Como le Var," but the comedian hit it off with Vera Pearce and chorus in "I'd Love a Piano," a fascinating ragtime jingle, rendered with plenty of snap. A piece of nonsense, "Another Little Drink," by Miss Pearce, Messrs. Cannot and Welch, scored on by reason of its quaint, audacious inanity. Thelma Raye's best number was "Baby Girl," sweetly sung with Jean Keith, and the soprano had other opportunities. Al. Prince and Helen Deerie now strengthen the combination, more especially in their "Telephone Duet," with a spot light that flits from one to the other as question and answer pass through space across the wireless. Daisy and Sydney Yates have advantageously joined, the former as a fair-haired Diana, all grace in her swiftness of movement; and the latter marvellously clever in a "moto perpetuo" with his feet, the honours of which are shared with Walter Weems, who literally "dances attendance" as he brings in the dishes. Mr. J. Quinlan introduced a captivating piece of music in his song, "Was There Ever a Night," in which his vibrant tenor voice had full effect with the chorus of girls, and this success established him after some efforts that did not please so much. Mr. Will Quintrell conducted the orchestra, and some dainty scoring assisted the new show, which was received with the utmost cordiality.

FINANCIAL.

A. AND E. ELLIS.

The report of the above company for the six months ended August 31 states that a fair volume of business has been transacted. A net profit of £3104 is shown. A sum of £4425 was brought forward, and the directors have transferred £4500 to the reserve fund, leaving £3029 available for dividend, which is recommended at the rate of 8 per cent., absorbing £3000, the remaining £29 being carried forward. The reserve fund now amounts to £8000. The capital is £75,000, and sundry creditors absorb £22,838. On the other side of the balance-sheet, sundry debtors are represented by £14,196, stocks by £23,733, vessels, punt, and Pyrmont wharf £15,850, other properties £42,100, and investments £2500.

ENEMY SHAREHOLDERS.

GERMAN HOLDINGS IN MINES.

There is now being published in the "Government Gazette" a list of enemy shareholders in different companies. The chief point of interest in these is the frequency with which the names of certain German firms and persons appear in mining companies. Some of the German shareholders are:—

| Shareholder. | No. of Shares. | Name of Company. |
|---|---|---|
| Direction der Disconto Gesellschaft. | 945 | Mungana Mining Co. |
| | 4,750 | Amalgamated Zinc (De Bavay's), Ltd. |

| | 16,500 | Oroya Links. |

There are many other enemy shareholders mentioned, with blocks of shares varying from 10 to 1000, and a number between 1000 and 2000.

ENEMY FIRM.

The Federal Attorney-General, it is notified in the "Government Gazette," has declared the Bradstreet Company to be an enemy firm.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Mr. William Gordon Atwell Harris has been elected a member of the Sydney Stock Exchange.

The French war loan is not redeemable in 1931. It is interminable, subject, however, to the right of the French Government to redeem it any time after 1931, in part or in whole.

The wool sales were resumed yesterday, 11,237 bales being offered at auction. Total sales, including private transactions, amounted to 9914 bales.

Best descriptions remained very firm at extreme rates, but for all other wools there was a weaker tendency.

WAR PROBLEMS.

EXPORT OF ENEMY ORIGIN GOODS.

"Importer" writes:—

I have some German scents which I advanced on before the commencement of the present war, and which have remained in bond since. In the event of my wishing to tranship to a neutral country, will this be permitted under the present regulations? The goods mentioned were placed in bond on September 28, 1913, and May 13, 1914, and have been in bond ever since. I advanced on them about the month of February, 1914.

If property in the cents passed to a British subject before the war broke out, the authorities would allow them to be exported.

THE WAR PROFITS TAX.

LACK OF INCENTIVE.

In determining that next year the whole of war profits shall be taken, the Federal Treasurer seems to have overlooked one common trait of human nature, a refusal to risk something for nothing. He says that he does not imagine that because all extra profit will be taken a business man will tolerate any slowing down of his employees so as to bring profits down to normal. But profits are made by a business man applying his brains to investment, or, if one will, to speculation of money. If all the profit is taken then the money will not be risked. To take an example. A merchant is doing a nice steady business, which returns him a bread and butter profit. If he wants to make extra profit he has to speculate. He has to apply the knowledge which he has in buying up lines cheaply, with the chance of selling them on the market at a profit. If he knows that all the profit he so makes is to be taken away from him, well, he will not risk his money, because some of his investments are bound to turn out losses. But if he knows that he could retain 50 per cent, or as in the case of Great Britain, 40 per cent. of those profits, there would be some encouragement to him to risk his money. If a mechanic working on piece were informed that all the money he made over £4 a week would be taken from him by a war profits tax, would he exert himself to earn more than £4 a week?

THE DEFINITION OF CAPITAL.

"Cavendish" asks:—

With reference to the term "capital" in the war profits tax. Presumably this will include reserves of undivided profits carried forward from previous years. Can you confirm the presumption? The matter is of widespread interest.

Capital in the bill is defined by clause 17 as follows:—

"The amount of capital of a business shall be taken to be the amount of its capital paid up in money or in kind, together with all accumulated profits and balances brought forward from previous years to the credit of profit and loss account, and invested in the business, less all proper deductions for wear and tear or replacement."

LEVY ON WEALTH.

TAXING THE WAR LOAN.

"Another Subscriber" writes:—

Sir,—I was most decidedly of the opinion that war loan (principal) was free of all taxation, both Federal and State, and invested principally from at patriotic point of view, inasmuch as I could have invested in many other ways at 6 to 7 per cent., but waived that, considering it a matter of duty to the State. And I must say that I think it a breach of faith to tax this special war loan money—the difference between, say, 6 per cent. and 4½ per cent. is a sort of indirect tax on ourselves, to say nothing of locking up the money for 10 years, and seeing that the loan is for direct war purposes, I maintain we are doing our part in this particular transaction.

Our correspondent has read more into the exemption than really appears there. It would be a very obnoxious thing to create a class that was free of taxation. That would be making a privileged class, indeed.

HOW IS THE EXEMPTION APPLIED?

"Toowoomba" (Q.) writes:—

I would be obliged if you would give me the information through your columns re new proposed taxation. I am in a small way of business, having managed to save a few hundred pounds in seven years. I have invested all my money in Government Savings Bank. I have £300 in my name in this bank, also have £250 in a trust account with my mother, also have £200 in Government Savings Bank, Queensland. I have, say, £100 goods, stock-in-trade. Do I have to pay 1½ per cent. war tax on £850 in Savings Bank and £100 stock-in-trade, or am I exempt from tax?

Assuming that the money held in trust is for the benefit of our correspondent, so that his real wealth is £850, he should be taxed to the extent of 1½ per cent. on £350 only. It is true that there is some ambiguity in the Treasurer's statements in this regard, but this is the only reasonable interpretation.

A WIDOW'S MITE.

"Perplexed" writes:—

By kindly giving information you will greatly oblige re war tax. I possess about £2200 (left by my late husband), upon which probate has been paid. It consists of £450 Government Savings Bank, the remainder in mortgage and shares in public companies. The interest I receive is over £100 a year, which is all I have to live on. How do I stand? What shall I have to pay?

To the extent of £1700 the capital will be subject to a tax of 1½ per cent., payable in three annual instalments.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Metal goods remained quiet yesterday, with no big lines moving. Merchants refrained from buying on the market, and country houses were purchasing only from hand to mouth. Black fencing wire was distributing at £23/10/ for No. 8 and No. 10 at £26; for galvanised wire, No. 8, £28 was asked, and £1 more for No. 10. No. 12 was extremely scarce, and the price was quite nominal. The demand for rabbit-proof netting was very restricted. Basis price of Australian remained unaltered at £66. A little has lately arrived from England, but freight brought up the costs to a very high figure. For assorted nettings 18 gauge and finer, a premium on the list price of 52½ per cent. was asked; for 17 gauge 25 per cent. was added on to the list, and for 16 gauge and coarser 35 per cent. on was asked. Practically only Australian barbed wire is now obtainable, and 12 gauge close set is quoted at £34, 14 gauge at £35/10/. The special make in each gauge was £1/17/6 on to the ordinary prices. Galvanised iron, 26 gauge Orb, was worth £38/10/ per ton, and Redcliffe £38. Plain galvanised iron, first brands, was distributing, 24 gauge £37/10/, 26 gauge at £39/15/, and 28 gauge at £41. Bar iron and shoeing steel were quoted at £24 per ton, shoeing iron at £25, all these being basis price. For angle iron £25/10/ was asked, and for tees an additional half-sovereign. Sheet lead in full rolls was worth £38 per ton, and piping in coils £43/10/. Tinplates were quite nominal at 40/ a box. There was a little demand for harvesting material. Hayforks sold in small quantities, three-pronged 5½ft at 37/ a dozen.

In the oil market the only movement of note occurred in fish oil, in which there were some higher quotations by cable. Some fair parcels changed hands, among them being one lot of 750 cases at 2/3. A little business was done in Champion's whitelead at £68. Distributing £68/10/ was asked. Linseed oil, raw, was going out to the storekeepers at 5/ a gallon for first brands, and turpentine was worth 4/2.

The demand from the country for cornsacks continued strong, and supplies in all positions were 1d dearer at 9/1 net to rails. Branbags and woolpacks were unchanged.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday was 3132 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

AN IMMENSE CARRY-OVER.

With the prospect of another big harvest in front of us, as disclosed by the Statistician's figures published yesterday, the position of the unshipped portion of last harvest is of more than passing interest. The figures for the whole of Australia may be gleaned from the following statement, extracted from the official figures published on Saturday:—

| | | Bags. |
|---|---|---|
| Total received | | 53,833,000 |
| Shipped | 12,036,000 | |
| Sold locally | 8,641,000 | |
| Sold otherwise | 109,000 | |
| | | 20,786,000 |
| Available on October 2 | | 33,047,000 |
| Local consumption, 2 months | | 1,750,000 |
| Available for shipment | | 31,297,000 |

In nine months of the year 12,000,000 bags were shipped. How long will it take to ship 31,297,000 bags at the same rate of progress. Look at it another way: 31,297,000 bags represent 2,500,000 tons. How many ships of 5000 tons capacity would be required to shift this from our shores before the end of the year? It is quite evident that the new harvest will be upon us before half of the shipping surplus from last harvest will have left Australia.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 631 tons of wheat and 190 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Wheat, flour, bran, and pollard, official prices unaltered, sellers still accepting concessions on regulated rates for bran and pollard. Oats quiet, 1/8 to 1/10 ex store. Barley, 2/ to 2/3 for feed lines. Chaff, 40/ to 42/6, on trucks Mile End, exclusive bags. Cornsacks, 9/ spot, 9/1½ to 9/3 for season's delivery. Branbags, 7/9.

MELBOURNE FRUIT MARKET.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The following are the wholesale prices for fruit at the Western market:—Apples, eating 2/ to 7/6, cooking 2/ to 6/. Lemons, Victorian, 12/ to 14/. Mandarins, N.S.W. 10/ to 15/. Oranges, Mildura 12/ to 13/, N.S.W. 6/ to 11/. Passion fruit, N.S.W. 10/ to 16/. Pineapples, Queens 8/6 to 9/ per double case; ditto, roughs, 7/ to 8/ per double case.

ADELAIDE.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

There was a capital attendance at the second wool sale of the series to-day, when 15,000 bales of wool, drawn almost entirely from the outside country, were offered, and the great bulk cleared. Competition was general and keen, contrary to expectations. All good free wools sold quite as well as at the previous sale, notwithstanding the fact that freight had been raised. Medium sorts also changed hands right up to opening prices. Extra burry lines were difficult to dispose of. Burry crossbreds were distinctly cheaper, but good free wools of this character were in satisfactory demand at fully last sales rates. There was no demand for scoureds. The bulk of the wool went to Bradford, although Italy lifted a large quantity. Free crossbreds, it is assumed, were secured by the French Government. The top price for greasy merino was 1/8.

HOMEBUSH STOCK SALES.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

EXPORT VALUES FIRM.

The sale list for yesterday's sheep sale accounted for 23,800 sheep, but several of the consignments were short, and only 18,563 were brought under the hammer from 98 owners. These came from most of the sheep districts of the State. A larger proportion than at any previous sale was shorn. The market opened buoyant, and as exporters were present and operating freely, bidding was animated, especially for heavyweights. It was also fairly strong for good trade sheep. All the unshorn carried good skins and condition, and during the whole forenoon values continued better than those of last Thursday for all grades, except that the medium to inferior qualities were rather irregular. Shorn sheep were in good demand; some of them were in choice condition, and exporters competed for them. Merino wethers were sought after all round. The highest price realised during the morning was for a pen of woolly crossbreds, which were run up to 45/ before they were knocked down; while a selection of merinos ran up to 43/1. The larger lambs were sold with the sheep, but a few pens of suckers were penned to themselves for sale during the afternoon. Generally, prices for the heaviest sheep are quoted from a shilling to eighteenpence above Thursday's rates, with a few up to 2/; while good useful trade weights were about the same as last day's rates. Plain bodied sheep were not in such demand, and are rather weaker.

During the afternoon the market held its own, and remained firm. Good values were recorded for all useful kinds, and amongst the best prices netted were the following:—Account Mr. G. D. Davidson, Gular, w to 42/3; Mr. W. Woods, Gungadal, xb w to 43/6; Mr. W. Vanstone, Walgett, w to 40/11; Mr. M. O'Brien, Warialda, w to 41/; Mr. W. R. Hyem, Gunnedah, xb w to 42/8; Captain C. C. Dangar, Quirindi, w to 40/; Mr. J. Tancred, Narromine, xb w to 42/7; Messrs. Walker Prior, and Walker, Tarcoon, w to 40/2; Messrs. Hawken Bros., Cookamidgera, xb w to 40/3; Mr. L. L. Dowe, Gunnedah, xb w to 43/; estate of the late Mr. J. K. Fleming, Aberdeen, the best price of the day, xb e 47/3; Mr. W. V. Gibbs, Cathundral, w to 39/1; and Wallangra Pastoral Co., Boggabri, w to 39/.

Quotations: Prime woolly merino w and h 36/ to 38/6, extra prime to 42/3, good woolly merino w and h 31/ to 34/; woolly shortwool w and h 25/ to 31/, inferior lower; prime shortwool merino w and h, 29/ to 34/; good, 25/ to 27/; prime merino e 27/ to 31/, good 24/ to 26/, medium 21/ to 23/, inferior lower; prime woolly xb w and h 34/ to 39/, extra to 45/, good 25/ to 29/; prime woolly crossbred e and h 33/ to 30/, extra prime and heavy to 47/3, good 29/ to 32/, medium 25/ to 28/6; prime shorn crossbreds to 29/.

LAMBS.

Although all but a few of the lambs were sold with the sheep, some good prices were realised, amongst them a nice lot of suckers, on account of Mr. R. R. Dangar, Quirindi, to 27/; others ranged as high for small lots as 30/.

CATTLE.

MARKET IRREGULAR.

About 1390 cattle were listed for the sales, but there were scarcely that number in the yards. They were entered by 81 owners, and were usually in lots of from 10 to 40. The quality generally was very good. All descriptions, from very heavy bullocks to vealers, were forward. Competition at early sales was a little stronger than on Thursday, and prices were firmer, but not quotably so. There was some irregularity in values, but up to lunch time there was no real alteration in the quotations of last day's sale. In the afternoon, however, the irregularity in values became more pronounced, and the market dragged a little. Some of the best prices realised were:—Account Mr. A. Firth, Warren, blks to £25/5/, avg £23/17/6; Messrs. Leitch Bros., Wagga, blks to £22/17/6, avg £21/10/; Mr. W. R. Pitman, Moree, blks to £23, avg £18/6/; Mr. E. Bowman, Muswellbrook, blks to £21/5/, avg £20/1/; A. A. Co., Warrah, Willow Tree, blks to £20/8/, avg £19/11/; Mr. A. J. Turner, Manilla, blks to £21/9/, avg £19/18/.

Quotations: Yards of prime medium-weight bullocks and steers, £17 to £20; yards of prime heavy-weight bullocks, to £23; odd yards of prime light bullocks and steers, £15 to £18; yards of good light bullocks and steers, £13 to £15; yards of medium and light bullocks and steers, £11 to £13; yards of small and inferior steers, £8 to £11; yards of prime cows and heifers, £13 to £17, odd higher; yards of good cows and heifers, £10 to £12; yards of medium cows and heifers, £8 to £10; yards of light and inferior, from £5. Best light beef, young, to about 59/; prime heavy beef to about 50/, prime medium-weight to about 56/; good beef, to 48/, and medium beef to 40/ per 100lb.

MINING.

Despite racing at Randwick, business was fairly brisk in the mining section of the Sydney Stock Exchange yesterday, and a good number of early sales were listed. High 'Change was productive of only a few recorded transactions, but the afternoon furnished an average turnover. Only gold and tin stocks were dealt in, until late in the afternoon, when a couple of sales of Barrier stocks were effected. Prices sagged practically down the entire list. What appeared to be a reaction from the strength manifested last week was ascribed to "the swing of the pendulum."

GENERAL SYNOD.

TO-DAY'S BUSINESS.

The general synod of the dioceses in Australia and Tasmania will meet in the I.O.O.F. Temple, Elizabeth-street, this afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the address of the president (Archbishop Wright) will be delivered.

A number of resolutions dealing with Church and other matters are on the business paper. "The introduction of an Imperial Sunday Alliance, to bring about a better observance of the Lord's Day, and to safeguard for the people the principle of a weekly day of rest," will be suggested by the Archdeacon of Hobart.

Mr. L. V. Briggs will move,—"That the events of the past two years have demonstrated the necessity for the creation of some small permanent body, representative of the bishops, clergy, and laity of the entire Commonwealth, and able to take action in any national emergency."

The disabilities imposed by statute upon clergymen of the Church of England ordained in oversea dominions of the King are the subject of resolutions from Ballarat and Sydney, and synod is to be asked to take steps to have them removed.

A resolution from the conference of the diocese of Carpentaria, protesting against the use of the title "North Queensland" by that diocese, will be considered.

Riverina will request general synod, acting on behalf of the Church of England in the Commonwealth, to make arrangements with the naval and military authorities whereby separate services shall be provided for Anglican members of the Defence Forces during the periods of military or naval training.

Divine service will be held in St. Andrew's Cathedral at 10.30 this morning, when the Bishop of Adelaide will preach the inaugural sermon. Choral eucharist will be celebrated. Merbecke's music being used. Special arrangements have been made in regard to the seating accommodation. The visiting bishops will occupy positions in the chancel. The procession will enter the Cathedral from the new choir vestry, adjoining the northern transept, which was dedicated by the Archbishop on Sunday afternoon. A new prayer desk and chair in solid oak, for the use of the Archbishop's chaplain, were placed in position yesterday. They were presented by a member of the Cathedral congregation, who has been an adherent of St. Andrew's for the past 20 years. An additional superfrontal was also presented to the Cathedral yesterday. Both gifts are handsome acquisitions to the Cathedral appointments.

MISSION WORK.

A missionary demonstration in connection with the General Synod of Australia and Tasmania was held in the Town Hall last night, Archbishop Wright occupying the chair. A short service preceded the meeting, the Cathedral organist, Mr. Joseph Massey, presiding at the organ.

The Primate, after welcoming the visiting archbishops and bishops, said they met on the eve of the General Assembly in Sydney, one of the most important events in the history of the Church. They looked to the future for much work to be done, but in carrying out this work assistance had to be given. It was giving this assistance that would enable them to build up the fabric they wished to go on. It was their place to give a stimulus that would spur others to the work.

The Bishop of North Queensland referred to the sacrifices that were being made by those engaged in military work. He also referred to the achievements that had been performed in the mission stations in his diocese.

The Bishop of Carpentaria spoke of the enthusiasm and self-sacrifice that were to be found among workers in the lonely mission fields.

The Bishop of the North-west dealt with some of the difficulties in connection with missionary work in the North-west, and paid a tribute to the work of Mr. Gribble, who, he said, had refused the position of Protector of Aborigines in Queensland at £800 a year to go as a missionary to the blacks in the Forest River district at £150 a year. Mr. Gribble at present had only one white worker with him. He had always deprecated asking the Government for money for mission work. They were not there to do the work of the Government, but the work of the Church. But surely it should not be hard on the people of Australia to provide for such work as Mr. Gribble's. The war would open up tremendous fields of mission work, and Australia would have to take her part in it.

The Archbishop of Brisbane said that the obligation of the missionary cause would come upon Australia in a far greater way in the future. It seemed as if to-day a new urgency had arrived. The world had come to see that the only remedy for the present misery was the teaching of the Cross of Christ. There was to be considered the economic distress of to-day, and many of them sympathised with the Labour movement in its efforts to change these conditions. All these things, however, pointed to one fact—that we could never change the world until we got to the roots of the passions and desires of man. So the message they stood for would come with ten thousand-fold force. The war had wrought many changes. Men who had looked on the realities of life—those who would come from the blood-stained banks of the Somme—were they not going to realise the changes? They would be different. They would have seen the highest. What would they be offered? There was no appeal like the appeal of mission work. These men on returning would be caught with the heroism and romance of the mission appeal. Mission work would be extended because of the world's great need, and because of the career that it offered. Their responsibility was to prepare for this expansion of the future.

The Rev. G. H. Cranswick, M.A., gave an address on missionary work.

BOOKMAKERS AND SUBPOENAS.

In asking for a postponement yesterday of an action in which the plaintiff, a member of the City Tattersall's Club, sued the defendant for slander, Mr. M'Kean, who appeared for the plaintiff, asked for a postponement, on the ground that his witnesses were not present. He added "My principal witnesses are bookmakers, to whom a subpoena is nothing at all, and they simply refuse to attend, on the ground that there is a race meeting on to-day."

His Honor: Are you asking me to postpone the case because of a race meeting to-day?

Mr. M'Kean: Not exactly; but we are without our witnesses, who cannot possibly come. The case was originally put down for today, because there was no race meeting then, but owing to the wet weather the races had to be postponed, the result being that there is a meeting to-day, and also on Wednesday. We are willing to pay the costs of the day.

His Honor: You will have to renew the application at the end of the present case.

In the afternoon, however, a postponement was opposed, and plaintiff's case proceeded, though an adjournment before 4 o'clock was granted.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The energetic Antarctic disturbance which was over the Western Bight on Saturday has made very rapid progress eastward, and is at present centrally situated to the south-east of Tasmania.

Owing to this storm's rapid movement only light to moderate rainfall resulted in the southern part of the State.

A new high pressure now covers the western half of the Continent, with the centre travelling in low latitudes.

With these pressure conditions we should have fine weather generally, with the exception of a few showers on the South Coast and highlands, with southerly winds and cool temperatures.

Ocean Forecast: Squally westerlies east from Cape Borda; fresh southerlies on the New South Wales Coast.

SPRING MEETING.

THIRD (CRAVEN PLATE) DAY.

CARLITA WINS CRAVEN PLATE.

MANNA, THE GIMCRACK STAKES.

Beautifully fine, cool, and bright weather favoured the third day's racing in connection with the A.J.C. Spring Meeting yesterday, and for the "off" day there was an attendance of over 18,000 persons to witness the sport. The tracks and reserves, covered with spring verdure, were bright and fresh, and the general arrangements for the enjoyment of outdoor sports left nothing to be desired.

THE RACING.

The continuous fine weather since Friday last had a decidedly beneficial effect on the track, which, though still a trifle "against the watch," was splendid going, and fast times were registered, especially in the Craven Plate, the time for which was only three-quarters of a second more than the record for the track credited to Woorak two years ago. The card was run through without mishap, and the duties of the stipendiary stewards were very light. Wagering was brisk, and, though a couple of favourites and a second favourite won, the successes of Carlita, Manna, and Common Law in the Craven Plate, Gimcrack Stakes, and Sydney Handicap, respectively, provided a fair margin of profit for the pencillers.

A commencement was made with the Second Hurdle Race, for which only half a dozen of the score listed were stripped for action, and there was most money for Jack Rice and Greek Fire, the former of whom had a slight call in the market at barrier-rise, while the only other backed with any confidence was A.J.I. Trentbar and Sweet Step alternated in front for the first couple of miles, with Jack Rice acting as whipper-in for a mile and a half; then the favourite made a forward move, and three furlongs from home was level with Sweet Step, whom he outpaced ere they turned for home, and, finishing at his ease, scored from Trentbar and Go Alone, who were separated by a length. A.J.I. ran in the rear for the first half-mile, and was then pulled up. It was a highly creditable performance on the part of Jack Rice, and the crowd displayed their appreciation of it by an ovation, which commenced when he cleared the last obstacle and continued until he returned to scale.

With such w.f.a. talent as Woorak, Polycrates, Cyklon, Garlin, Wallace Isinglass, Cetigne, Bee, Carlita, Sasanof, and Thana to measure strides in the Craven Plate, the contest was invested with more than ordinary interest. Cetigne, who carried topweight into third place in the Metropolitan, was promptly installed favourite, with Woorak, Sasanof, and Polycrates next fancied in the order named, and Garlin headed the others. The contest was of the character that might have been expected from the company, and the result was in doubt until a few strides from the post. Cyklon, who was one of the first to get into his stride, Woorak, and Sasanof were almost in line at the end of the first furlong, but a little further on Sasanof lost his place, and at the mile-post Cyklon and Woorak were disputing the lead, with Garlin, Polycrates, and Sasanof in their wake. Five furlongs from home Cyklon, Polycrates, and Woorak were battling it out in line, and a furlong further on the favourite joined the leading division. Woorak and Cyklon came round the bend just in advance of Cetigne and Polycrates, and, Cyklon fading out of it as they swept into the home stretch, Woorak was left in command, with Cetigne hard upon him. Here Carlita appeared upon the scene, with Bee and Wallace Isinglass, the latter of whom had been acting as whipper-in to the bend, where he began to work towards the leading division. Cetigne put in a strong claim at the distance, just inside of which he headed Woorak, but just as his victory was loudly proclaimed, as they neared the half-distance, Carlita, who was coming along with great resolution, threw out a bold challenge to Cetigne, who responded gamely to the call of his rider, but Carlita gradually gained on him inch by inch, and just got up in time to defeat the well-performed son of Grafton by a head amid a scene of great excitement. Wallace Isinglass, who finished with great determination, just cut the New Zealander Sasanof, who was hampered on the rails, out of third place; but the others were strung out, with Cyklon at the tail of the hunt. Carlita, who belongs to the French woolbuyers who raced as Messrs. "P. Rogers and P. Rivers," is a New Zealand-bred mare, by Charlemagne II. (imp.) from Couronne, by Gipsy Grand from Coronal, by Medallion from Corolea, by St. Albans from Waterlily, by Rapid Bay, and was purchased at the Randwick yearling sales for 125 guineas. It was a profitable investment for our Allied friends, who in the meantime were credited with a dozen wins out of 39 starts, seven seconds, and a like number of thirds, her earnings amounting to £15,455. Her third place in the Spring Stakes a week ago was worth £150, and, with £1525 for the Craven Plate, brings her total earnings to date up to £17,130, which will, in all probability, be considerably increased in the near future, as she holds a Melbourne Cup engagement with 9st 5lb, and is in the A.J.C. Randwick Plate and the big w.f.a. events of the V.R.C. Spring Meeting. She is trained by the veteran J. Moore, and among her successes are the Easter Stakes as a two-year-old at Randwick, the Rosehill Guineas, V.R.C. Derby, Oaks, and Champion Stakes, A.J.C. Randwick Plate, V.R.C. C. B. Fisher Plate, Williamstown Cup, and V.R.C. Loch Plate, and she now holds the Australian record for the turf winnings of a mare, previously held by Wakeful.

Two dozen, the largest field of the afternoon, took part in the Suburban Handicap, for which Hopfield and Merimee practically monopolised the betting, the former starting slightly the better favourite, and Inia was the best fancied of the others. Inia, attended in turn by Hopfield, Sydian, and Sunlike, set the pace until the distance was cast behind, then Hopfield and Merimee ran past her, and finished as named, the positions of the placed horses being accurately foreshadowed by the betting market. The first and second horses hail from H. J. Robinson's stable. Hopfield belongs to the successful Maltster tribe, and his dam, Circe, is by Castor (imp.) from Cissy, by Musket.

The Members' Handicap attracted a field of 17, and favouritism was disputed by Alice Kenilworth and Mehi King, with Mafoso, Tabasco, and Baldpate the best supported of the others. Mafoso essayed to win from end to end, and he held his place to the half-distance, where Mehi King swooped down on the outside, and, passing his horses as if they were anchored, got up in time to score by a length from Mafoso. The winner, who also hails from H. J. Robinson's stable, is a Mungie Bundie-bred son of Mountain King and Lady Mehi, by San Francisco (imp.) from Lady Mostyn, by Neckersgat.

The score of young ladies that accepted for the Gimcrack Stakes fulfilled their engagements, and the best fancied of the bunch was Pretty Cool, a shapely daughter of Cooltrim (imp.) and Risky, who left the paddock a short-priced favourite, while second favouritism was disputed by Trestle, Nancy Sykes, Linora, Lornette, and Pleasant Moments, the only other marketable being Manna. Nancy Sykes, who took charge in the first furlong, led to the distance, where Princess Winifred had command for a few strides from Nancy Sykes and Manna, but the latter silenced opposition before the half-distance was reached, and scored in hollow fashion from the favourite, who appeared on the scene too late. Manna was bred by Mr. H. C. Rouse, and is by Varco (imp.) from Mango, by Maltster from Mangosteen, by Lochiel, and she carried the colours of her breeder. Pretty Cool was bred at the Widden stud, and her dam, Risky, is by Grafton from Ventureus, by Lochiel; and Nancy Sykes, who filled the other situation, is full-sister to Colugo.

A bakers' dozen went to the post for the Sydney Handicap, with Two Blues and Bachelor's Persee joint favourites, and the best backed of the others were Pretty Bobby, Karanaud King, Fantarie, Narivo, and Common Law. After the first couple of furlongs had been cast behind, Common Law took command, and was not afterwards headed, winning easily from Bachelor's Persee and Fantarie, while Two Blues never flattered his numerous supporters at any stage.

THE DETAILS.

Other starters: Greek Fire, 10st 12lb (R. M'Severy); Sweet Step, 10st 3lb (W. Baker); A.J.I., 1ost 5lb (F. Coleman).

Betting: 2 to 1 v Jack Rice, 5 to 2 v Greek Fire, 9 to 2 v A.J.I., 10 to 1 v Sweet Step, 12 to 1 v Trentbar, 20 to 1 v Go Alone.

Sweet Step and Greek Fire moved off in front, followed by Trentbar, who flew the mile hurdle just clear from Greek Fire, Sweet Step, and Jack Rice, with A.J.I. last. Without change they raced along the back to the six furlongs post, where Sweet Step took charge, and was followed at intervals of three lengths by Greek Fire, Trentbar, and Jack Rice, after whom came Go Alone and A.J.I., the latter of whom was pulling up. Trentbar resumed command at the entrance to the straight from Sweet Step, but the latter again drew out and flew the St. Leger hurdle a couple of lengths from Trentbar; Greek Fire and Go Alone were a similar distance off, and Jack Rice in the rear. In that order they passed the judge's box for the first time, and Sweet Step turned out of the straight, followed at length intervals by Trentbar, Greek Fire, and Go Alone, with Jack Rice six lengths away. Without change they raced along the side, past the mile post, and along the back to the half-mile post, where Jack Rice made a forward move, and in the next furlong was upsides with Sweet Step, and the pair had Trentbar at their heels. Jack Rice turned for home with Sweet Step and Trentbar in pursuit, and drawing away won in a canter by seven lengths from Trentbar, who had Go Alone at his heels. Sweet Step was close up fourth, and Greek Fire eight lengths away. Time, 4m 49½s.

CRAVEN PLATE, a sweepstake of 10 sovs each, with 2000 sovs added; second horse 400 sovs, and the third 200 sovs from the prize. 1¼m.

Messrs. "P. Roger" and "J. Rivers'" b or br m Carlita, by Charlemagne II. (imp.)—Couronne, 5yrs, 8st 13lb (R. Brennan) ........ 1
Mr. G. Barnett's b h Cetigne, by Grafton (imp.)—Pretty Nell, 4yrs, 9st (W. Foulsham) ........ 2
Mr. "J. Baron's" ch h Wallace Isinglass, by Wallace—Glass Queen (imp.), 4yrs, 9st (A. Wood) ........ 3

Other starters: Woorak, 9st 4lb (K. Bracken); Polycrates (imp.), 9st 4lb (M. Connell); Cyklon (imp.), 9st 4lb (R. Lewis); Garlin, 9st 4lb (W. McLachlan); Bee, 8st 12lb (W. Smart); Sasanof, 7st 8lb (F. Dempsey); Thana, 7st 8lb (A. Shanahan).

Betting: 3 to 1 v Cetigne, 9 to 2 v Woorak, 6 to 1 v Sasanof, 7 to 1 v Polycrates, 10 to 1 v Garlin, 16 to 1 v Bee, 20 to 1 each v Cyklon and Wallace Isinglass, 25 to 1 v Carlita, 33 to 1 v Thana.

They left in line, but in a few strides Cyklon had a slight advantage from Woorak and Sasanof, with Wallace Isinglass last. Cyklon and Woorak, on terms, passed the mile post with Garlin and Polycrates at their girths, Sasanof was two lengths away at the head of a big bunch, whipped in by Wallace Isinglass. Without material change they raced along the back to the five furlongs post, where Cyklon, Polycrates, and Woorak were disputing the lead a length and a half in advance of Sasanof and Thana, with Cetigne making a forward move, and Wallace Isinglass in the rear. At the end of the next furlong Woorak had a slight lead from Polycrates. Cyklon was a length further back, and Cetigne coming through his horses. Cyklon joined issue with Woorak as they swung round the bend a length in front of Cetigne, with Polycrates and Bee a length away. Woorak shook off Cyklon as they turned for home, but at the distance was challenged by Cetigne, after whom, on close terms, came Carlita, Bee, Sasanof, and Wallace Isinglass. Carlita threw out a bold challenge to Cetigne at the half-distance, where Wallace Isinglass and Sasanof were threatening danger, but the finish was between Carlita and Cetigne, and the former won in an exciting encounter by a head. Wallace Isinglass was a length off third, and a neck in advance of Sasanof; then, after a gap of six lengths, came Bee, four in front of Woorak, Polycrates, and Garlin, with Thana and Cyklon whipping in. Time, 2m 6s.

SUBURBAN HANDICAP, a handicap sweepstakes of 10 sovs each, with 500 sovs added; second horse 100 sovs, and third 50 sovs from the prize. 1m.

Betting: 4 to 1 v Hopfield, 9 to 2 v Merimee, 10 to 1 v Inia, 12 to 1 each v Willow Green and Sydian, 14 to 1 each v Bombita and Lord Nagar, 16 to 1 v Lavanda, 20 to 1 each v La Balfour and Celano, 25 to 1 each v Omaha, Trinobantes, Agincourt, Modify, Alasco, and Irish Comedy, 33 to 1 each v the others.

Inia, Hopfield, and Omaha were the first to get going, while Agincourt and Trinobantes were slow to move. At the end of the first furlong Inia was in charge from Hopfield and Merimee, who were followed a length away by Nombi and Sunlike. When they reached the six furlongs post Sydian joined issue with Inia, and the pair were succeeded at length intervals by Nombi, Hopfield, Merimee, and Sunlike; but at the end of the next furlong Inia resumed command a length from Sydian and Sunlike, after whom came Merimee and Nombi, with Hopfield and Omaha at the head of the others. There was no alteration as they rattled past the half-mile post; and Inia came round the bend with Sydian and Sunlike at her heels; and succeeded by Merimee and Nombi, with Hopfield and Lavanda next. Save that Sydian lost his place, there was no change as they swept into the home-stretch, and at the distance Hopfield ran up to the heels of Inia, with Sunlike and Merimee close up. Inside that point Hopfield challenged Inia, and heading her at the half-distance, came on and won by half a length from Merimee, who beat Inia by a length and a half for second place. Bombita was close up fourth, with Alasco at his side; and a couple of lengths in advance of Tartan's Double, Sydian, La Balfour, Agincourt, Nombi, and Sir Willie, with Ronen, Celano, and Lord Nagar in the rear. Time 1m 39¼s.

MEMBERS' HANDICAP. A handicap sweepstakes of 10 sovs, with 500 sovs added. For three-years-old; second horse 100 sovs, and the third 50 sovs from the prize. 1m 1f.

Lambourne, Mafoso, and Sir Paddington were smartest into their strides, and Mafoso passed the mile post with Sir Paddington and Baldpate at his heels, followed by Taquisara and Native Belle. Passing the seven furlongs post, Native Belle ran up next Mafoso and joined him in the next furlong, where De Lyssa and Tabasco were at their heels. Mafoso shook off Native Belle as they neared the five furlongs post, and they were followed past that point by De Lyssa and Tabasco. Mafoso came round the bend and into the straight clear from Tabasco, Native Belle, and De Lyssa, while Mehi King, who had been running in the ruck, made a forward move. Mafoso was still in command at the distance from Tabasco and Native Belle; but inside that point Mehi King came with a brilliant run on the outside, and romping over his horses inside the half-distance, won by a length from Mafoso, who was a length and a half in advance of Tabasco. Knight o' Reel was six lengths off fourth, followed by De Lyssa, Taquisara, Pro Tem, and Ambitious, and the others were whipped in by Scythion, Tom Gallon, and Alice Kenilworth. Time, 1m 54¼s.

Mr. "Leslie English's" ch f Nancy Sykes, by The Welkin (imp.)—Mrs. Peggotty (imp.), 8st (W. Lilyman) ........ 3

Other starters: Opera Bouffe, 8st (R. Lewis); Princess Path, 8st (H. Webster); Sornette, 8st (R. Brennan); Malt Maid, 8st (A. Shanahan); Eiderdown, 8st (G. Meddick); Pleasant Moments, 8st (F. Betting: 2 to 1 v Pretty Cool, 8 to 1 each v Trestle, Nancy Sykes, Linora, Sornette, and Pleasant Moments, 10 to 1 v Manna, 20 to 1 each v the others.

Bronzola, Nancy Sykes, and Trestle were quickest away, while Linora dwelt and lost nearly half a dozen lengths. When they had settled into their places Nancy Sykes took charge, and rattled past the half-mile post followed by Princess Winifred, Lady Bayard, and Manna, with Linora last; and so they came round the bend. Nancy Sykes turned for home with Manna, Lady Bayard, Eiderdown, Brolly, and Pretty Cool in pursuit. Princess Winifred headed Nancy Sykes at the distance, where Manna and Pretty Cool were next, but inside that point Manna ran to the front, and, coming on, won by nearly four lengths from Pretty Cool, with Nancy Sykes a head away third. Princess Winifred was a head away fourth, and six lengths in advance of Linora and Earlstine; after whom came Malkin, Trestle, and Thestylis, with Bronzola a bad last. Time, 1m 2s.

SYDNEY HANDICAP, a handicap sweepstakes of 10 sovs each, with 500 sovs added, second horse 100 sovs and third 50 sovs from the prize, 1¼m.

Betting: 5 to 1 each v Two Blues and Batchelor's Persse, 7 to 1 v Pretty Bobby, 8 to 1 each v Karanaud King, Fantarie, and Narivo, 10 to 1 v Common Law, 12 to 1 v Silent Way, 20 to 1 each v Galtee Queen and Rushford, 33 to 1 each v the others.

Narivo and Silent Way moved off in front, and the latter showed the way past the judge's box, closely attended by Common Law, Karanaud King, Offa, Plenty, Galtee Queen, and Narivo, with Rushford last. Nearing the nine furlongs post Common Law took command from Offa, Silent Way, Plenty, Galtee Queen, Karanaud King, and Narivo, with Dollar Dictator last. Without change they opened up the back stretch, and ran to the five furlongs post, where Common Law was still in front, a length and a half from Offa, who was a similar distance in advance of Karanaud King, who was succeeded by Silent Way, Batchelor's Persse, and Narivo, with Dollar Dictator still in the rear. Common Law increased his lead at the half-mile post to three lengths from Silent Way and Offa, and Common Law turned for home with Silent Way, Narivo, and Offa next, followed by Batchelor's Persse and Fantarie. Common Law was not afterwards troubled, and won easily by two and a half lengths from Batchelor's Persse, who was three lengths in front of Fantarie. Silent Way was half a length off next, followed by Pretty Bobby, Two Blues, Dollar Dictator, and Offa; then after a gap came Rushford and Narivo, with Plenty and Galtee Queen bringing up the rear. Time, 2m 33¼s.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Epping racecourse will be the sporting rendezvous this afternoon, when the New South Wales Trotting Club holds a meeting. Numerous entries have been received, and the quality of the horses engaged should ensure high-class sport. The track is good going. The customary means of transit by trams, via George-street, will be in vogue; and the first event is timed to start at 1.45 p.m.

Entries for the Warwick Farm October Meeting close at 4 p.m. to-day with the secretary, Mr. H. B. Dando. The prize-money for the five events scheduled amounts to 525 sovs.

The Gimcrack Stakes won, yesterday, by Manna, was worth £1530 to her breeder, Mr. H. C. Rouse.

The secretary of the Australian Trotting Club announces that the time for taking entries for the meeting to be held on Monday next, has been extended until 8 p.m. to-day. The six events on the card carry, in the aggregate, 310 sovs. prize-money.

J. Scobie left by mail train for Melbourne, last evening, taking with him the racehorses Cyklon, Opera Bouffe, Sunder, and Stageland.

A lengthy catalogue of blood stock, including brood mares, stallions, untried stock, and racehorses in training, will be paraded at Payten's Newmarket stables to-day in connection with Messrs. William Inglis and Son's spring blood stock sales. Business commences at 2 p.m. sharp.

For disobedience at the post in the Breeders Plate on Saturday K. Bracken, who had the mount on Baltic Sea, was fined £5.

At the last New Zealand yearling sales a brother to Kilboy was purchased by Mr. Wilfred Stead for 100 guineas, and he also secured a sister to De Gama for 300 guineas. Some time later Mr. Stead was offered, and accepted, 500 guineas for the filly, but he kept the colt which he sent to one of his places to be turned out for a couple of years. However, since Kilboy had come into prominence Mr. Stead has recalled the two-year-old from exile.

In consequence of the postponement of the Ascot race meeting until Thursday, nominations for the Rosebery meeting will be received up till 5 p.m. on Friday, the 13th inst; and Mr. T. Watson will measure ponies on Friday, instead of on the regular day.

It is understood (wires our Brisbane correspondent) that a bill now in course of preparation will be introduced at an early date, with the object of limiting the number of race meetings of proprietary clubs in the same manner as has been done in other States.
